PLAN TWO NEW FAIR BUILDINGS

Need for Additional Space Urged, Say Officials

OPTIMISM KEYNOTE

Exhibitors List Is Rapidly Growing

Taking over all available accomodations on the Pleasure Pier, exhibitors clamoring for display at the First Annual Port Arthur Fair, to be held October 14 to 19, will be provided for by two new, permanent buildings, construction work to start on one of the buildings early in the week, according to word from fair officials Saturday.

One new building will be 40 feet wide and 128 feet long, one story high, and the other building, plans for which will be drawn up by the fair association in the near future, will be used for the livestock, poultry and dog show, officials said.

Permanent Organization

It was originally planned to house the livestock, poultry and dog show in a tent, but so keenly did the interest develop in these features of the fair that it has been decided to put up a permanent building.

Plans to make the automobile show one of the most pretentious features of the fair are being made by Port Arthur dealers. Every style and class of car handled by local firms will be entered, with a number of special designs coming out of factory centers, according to fair officials. A parade of closed cars also will be staged during one of the days of the fair.

Space for exhibits also will be arranged on the lower floor of the dancing pavilion at the pier, and in the old moving picture theater, which will be completely remodeled and renovated. Forming a midway approach to the exhibit buildings will be the 17 shows and seven riding devices of the Dodson's World Fair shows, which have been engaged to furnish amuse-

SUPPORT FOR EXHIBIT SEEN

Burge's Offices Flooded With Letters From Texans

Letters from all sections of Texas, pledging co-operation in efforts under way to enter a Texas exhibit in the Southern Exposition planned to be held in Grand Central Palace, New York City, next January are pouring into the office of Art L. Burge, manager of the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, who was elected secretary of the Texas exhibit boosters at a recent meeting in Fort Worth.

"All over Texas cities and communities are writing pledging themselves to take part in the New York exposition of industries, resources and advantages of all the southern states," Burge said. "They are making arrangements for taking space in Grand Central Palace, and collecting exhibits for entering in the Lone Star state's section, all of which indicates that Texas will make a very creditable showing.

"It is practically assured, also, that the Sabine district will be represented," Burge declared.

Old Home Town Stuff Is Pulled On Interurban

IT WAS a crowded interurban—most of the men were standing, most of the women were sitting.

Smiles, suppressed chuckles and then wild snorts of laughter. From one of the racks, nestled in the midst of baby jackets and what not, an innocent-looking milk bottle with the traditional rubber contraption protruded.

Drip, drip, drip. And it all went slowly dripping on a woman's new hat. She didn't know about it, and the crowd thought it was too funny to do anything about it.

Conductor breezed along. He followed the direction of eyes—ah, there it was. He crawled on the back of the seat and righted the bottle.

The car tore along, and the woman kept on looking out of the window. Last night she must have wondered what sort of sprinkle she ran through with her new chapeau.

YOUTH TO HANG GIVEN REPRIEVE

Illinois Governor to Await Krauser Decision

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Sept. 20.—A preliminary victory was won today in the fight to save Bernard Grant, penniless youth from "back o' the yards," Chicago, from hanging when Governor Len Small granted a 90-day reprieve which stays the order of execution until January 16, 1925. Grant is under sentence to hang October 17, in connection with the murder of a patrolman during a holdup.

Thousands Demand Pardon

Thousands of letters from all parts of the country have poured in on Small's office, demanding a pardon for Grant. Most of them charge that if Grant is hanged it will show that Illinois has one law for the rich and one law for the poor. These letters cite the case of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, millionaire youths, who pleaded guilty to the murder of Bobby Franks, and were sentenced to prison because Justice Caverly felt they were too young to hang.

George Sutton, secretary to Small, announced the reprieve after a long distance conference with the governor at the latter's home in Kankakee, Ill.

Krauser Absolves Grant

"It seemed to the governor that the wisest course at the present time is to postpone the consideration of Grant's petition until the case of Krauser has been finally acted upon by the supreme court; therefore he has this day granted to Bernard Grant a reprieve for 90 days until January 26, 1925," said Sutton.

Krauser in confessing the killing of Patrolman Souders said that Grant was his assistant. Later he denied the story.

Mrs. Mary Grant, mother of the prisoner, testified the youth was at home the time of the killing.

MAN CHOOSES TRACK FOR BED; IS KILLED

M'ALISTER, Okla., Sept. 20.—Jewell Hampton, 28 years old, died here today without regaining consciousness a few hours after he was mangled beneath the wheels of an interurban car. Both legs and an arm were severed. Trainmen said Hampton was asleep on the track.

Women Show Keen Interest In First Annual Exposition Here

Entertainment Committee in Charge of Various Features of October Fair Working Out Details

With the approach of October Port Arthur club women are beginning to watch with keen interest the progress of Port Arthur's First Annual fair, the dates of which are set for October 14-18. That the women of Port Arthur will have a vital part in the Fair activities is indicated by the number of club women who have been appointed by Mrs. K. A. Young, president of the Department club and general chairman of the Women's division, to serve on various committees at the fair.

All the entertainment features of the fair will be under the supervision of the entertainment committee, which is headed by Mrs. C. G. Hall, president of the Symphony club. Assisting Mrs. Hall will be Mrs. R. L. Drake, Mrs. T. J. Twomey, Mrs. R. E. Theobalt, Mrs. Fred P. Dodge, Mrs. J. A. Bledsoe and Mrs. E. H. McGuire, all of whom are talented musicians of Port Arthur.

Baby Show a Feature

One of the big features of the fair will be the baby show, which will be under the supervision of the women's division, and although the Fair association will offer no premiums in this department the citizens of Port Arthur will give winners special prizes. The committee in charge of the baby show is comprised of Mrs. C. T. Finley, chairman; Mrs. H. K. Goodwin, Miss Elma Walker, Mrs. F. D. Mabry, Mrs. J. T. Brown and Mrs. Mattie Johnson.

Women will also act as judges in

Wheeler Openly Charges Dawes With Wreck of Lorimer Bank

CLAIMS SHADY DEAL PULLED

Accuses G. O. P. Nominee of Bank Fraud

4,000 'LOST SAVINGS'

Coolidge's Mate 'Robbed Poor,' Says Independent

By United Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A charge that Chas. G. Dawes "lent himself" to a fraudulent banking transaction that robbed 4,000 Chicago citizens of their savings was made in a speech, here tonight by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, his independent vice presidential opponent.

Cites Old Records

Wheeler cited court records of the Lorimer bank case in his contention that Dawes has conspired to furnish $1,250,000 for a few hours to a ruined bank without collateral so that the bank could show examiners assets that did not exist.

The bank went to the wall some months later and wiped out the savings of its depositors, Wheeler declared.

"The part that Dawes had taken in this transaction became known to the receiver and he discovered the trick that Lorimer and Dawes had played," Wheeler said. "He brought suit to hold Dawes' bank liable for the full

NAVAL POLICY IS IN BALANCE

Wilbur Takes Up Probe of Aircraft Possibilities

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur tonight took the leadership in an expert study which may do much to settle the future of American naval policy.

At the direction of President Coolidge, Wilbur inaugurated an intensive survey of the relative importance of aircraft, battleships and submarines in naval warfare.

Having set in motion the machinery for the accumulation of essential data, Wilbur next week will appoint a board of naval officers to analyze the material. He had a long conference with the president today and at its conclusion announced the sole reason for his sudden recall from California was the president's desire that he begin the survey at the earliest possible moment.

CENTRAL CHINA IS NOW RESTIVE

War Lords Chafe at Rule By Pekin

SITUATION SERIOUS

Officials View Shanghai Row Second in Importance

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Government officials tonight were increasingly worried over the civil war situation in China, despite reports that the fighting around Shanghai promises to end soon with a victory for General Chi, an ally of the Pekin government.

North War Serious

The war which has begun along the great wall in the north between Pekin troops under General Wu Pei Fu and the Manchurian forces of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, is regarded here as much more serious than the local conflict of the last three weeks around Shanghai.

While more American lives and property is endangered in the Shanghai area than Manchuria, fear is expressed here that Chang's attempted invasion from the north may be the signal for a general uprising of military war lords in Central China, who are restive under Pekin rule and military dominance of Wu Pei Fu.

Kiangsu Troops Batter at Gates Outside Shanghai

By United Press

SHANGHAI, Sept. 21.—(3 a. m.)—Victorious Kiangsu troops battered at the gates of Shanghai last night.

With his armies already entering the suburbs of the city, General Chi Hsieh Yuan consolidated victories of the day in preparation for renewal of his attack of the great China seaport at dawn.

Foreign observers believed defeat of the Chekiang allies of Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian dictator, would be complete within a week.

General Lu Yung Hsiang made a final desperate effort to stem the invaders and rushed his remaining artillery units and reserves to the front lines in the early evening.

World Fliers Land In El Paso Field

DAVIS CONFIDENT OF STRENGTH IN WEST

EN ROUTE WITH DAVIS TO NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Homeward bound after a campaign through 10 states in the midwestern grain belt and in the foothills of the Rockies, John W. Davis, democratic standard bearer, felt satisfied today that he had awakened the west and started a trend in his direction. Although Davis and his managers are conceding no state to the opposition, they are making no extravagant claims. They realize that the democratic candidate has his hardest fighting before him. But so long as they feel the drift of public sentiment flowing toward him, they are confident that he can win.

IRENE CASTLE HAS SECOND HUBBY JAILED

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Irene Castle has caused a commotion on the Cornell campus.

Not only did she have her second husband, a Cornell graduate and prominent Ithaca citizen, arrested but she disputes ownership of the Sigma Chi fraternity home.

Arrest of Robert Tremaine followed the dancer's charge that he took $40,000 worth of her securities and sold them.

ASK ALVIN OWSLEY TO OPEN FAIR HERE

Invitation to Alvin Owsley, past national commander of the American Legion, to come to Port Arthur next month and formally open the First Annual Port Arthur Fair October 14, has been extended, and it is expected that Owsley will accept the invitation, officials of the fair said Saturday.

Governor Pat M. Neff was invited to formally open the fair, but he advised the local committee that it will be impossible for him to accept the invitation, fair officials said.

U.S. Engineers Take Control of Isonzo To Clear Canal of Hulk

Work of Righting Hull Preliminary to Removal to Be Started By Force of Workers Today

Seizing the burned and capsized Italian motorship Isonzo Saturday, U. S. government engineers immediately set into motion plans for salvaging the vessel and re-opening the ship canal to traffic, blocked since last Tuesday when the vessel went down in the channel above the locks.

Prediction that the canal will be cleared by next Thursday was made by Port Arthur shipping men when they heard of the action taken by the engineers, the first definite step, they claim, which has resulted from a series of conference held since the Isonzo caught fire and turned over five days ago.

Shore Winches to Pull Vessel

Neither Major L. J. Schley, of Galveston, U. S. district enginere, nor S. W. Clarke, government engineer in the Sabine district, would venture to say when the wrecked ship can be gotten out of the channel. The ship and all the cargo aboard were seized and will be held by the government until settlement is made with the government by the owners for the cost of salvage, Major Schley said.

Plans for righting and raising the Isonzo call for considerable equipment and a force of 25 or 30 men, Clarke said Saturday afternoon. Lines will be thrown completely around the capsized ship, extended to steam winches on the bank and the vessel pulled over to an upright position. Two divers will then be sent down to batten down hatches and port holes, making the hull water tight, so that the flooded holds can be pumped out and the vessel refloated, Clarke said.

Rigging up the equipment at the Isonzo will be started early Sunday, much of the material being already available in Port Arthur, and still more was expected late Saturday night following the dispatch of rush orders sent out Saturday afternoon by the government engineers, Clarke said. Steam hoists, steel cables, heavy blocks and tackle and other similar salvaging equipment were among the items which will be used for righting

NO FUNDS TO PAY JURYMEN

County to Ask Service On Credit Basis

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—Jefferson county will be unable to pay jurors within a month and they will be asked to credit the county until tax collections are made after the first of the year.

Approximately $1,100 in jury fees was paid out during the past week by county treasurer H. L. Williams. This leaves a balance of about $2400 in the jury fund, which at the present rate cannot last more than a month. The $1100 was paid to juries in both the district and county court at law the past week and a special venire was also summoned.

The depletion of the jury fund is caused by reason of the large number of cases tried in the district courts this year. The county had plenty of money last year to pay jurors, and even had a small amount in the fund when money was received for the new collections, but the number of cases tried was also much lower.

Oh, Fudge!

Trying to keep up with the styles is a terrible lot of bother. But little Beverly French, just 2, of St. Louis, knows a flapper has to do it. So she tries to be as patient as she can when sitting for a permanent wave.

40 PER CENT COTTON PICKED

Jefferson County Agent Praises Local Product

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—More than 40 per cent of the cotton in the Port Arthur territory has already been picked, according to J. C. Eisentraut, county farm agent. Mr. Eistnetraut also declared that the cotton was exceptionally fine and would yield about one-half bale to the acre.

The continued dry weather however, has caused other crops to suffer. More than 1000 acres were planted to sweet potatoes in the county last year, but farmers would not even set the plants out and there will be only about 300 acres this year. There has also been a fair acreage of sugar cane, but there is prctically none this year.

Hargrove To Head Demo Fund Drive

Appointment of H. M. Hargrove, president of the San Jacinto Life Insurance company, of Beaumont, as democratic financial chairman for Jefferson county, has been made by W. L. Clayton, director of finance for Texas, democratic national committee, according to advices received in Port Arthur Saturday. Hargrove will appoint assistant chairman in each section of the county to conduct an intensive campaign to raise Jefferson county's quota in the $250,000 expected to be raised in Texas for the democratic party, the messages set forth.

Congressman Hill is Host To Friends in Home Brew Party

Pro Commissioner Invited to Affair, Fails to Attend, But 1,500 Farmers Get 2.75 Kick

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 20.—"Franklin farms" a little backyard plot 100 to 30 feet in the heart of Baltimore, surrounded by six and seven story buildings, was the scene of a bilarious cider party tonight which Congressman John Philip Hill, the host, believes will go down in history with the Boston tea party of 1774.

For several hours, in a drizzling rain, a long line of self-invited guests, each with a paper drinking cup, shuffled steadily past four 55-gallon barrels from the taps of which flowed cider that attained an alcoholic "kick" of 2.75 per cent under the watchful care of Hill.

This line was for "farmers only." Each guest was asked to register his name and address. For the city guests, there was beer from three smaller kegs—beer of the "half of 1 per cent" variety.

Not so with the cider. "Farmers" appeared from every walk of life, and when the party had been in progress an hour, the contents of the cider kegs were three fourths gone.

The party was Hill's challenge to Prohibition Commissioner Roy Haynes. The congressman made the cider from apples picked from seven trees in the diminutive back yard, which he facetitiously calls "Franklin farms."

Hill made his cider and allowed it to ferment to an alcoholic content of 2.75. Then he sent out invitations for anyone, particularly farmers to

NEWTON, Texas, Sept. 20. With feeling running high here following a two-year suspended sentence given him for the murder of George Stephenson, former sheriff of Jasper county, L. L. Lankford, who pleaded self defense, was spirited out of Texas by friends into Louisiana late Saturday to escape mob action, according to authorities.

Stephenson Former Beaumont Man

Lankford pleaded self defense at the trial concluded here this afternoon. Stephenson, former Beaumont man, was fatally shot following an argument over some timber. The shooting occurred two weeks ago.

Stephenson was an avowed antiklansman and Lankford was said to be a member of the klan, according to Sheriff Dave Humphreys of Newton county, who said that both factions were represented in the court room during the trial.

COL. DUFF GETS TIME EXTENSION

Must File Exceptions to Report By Oct. 10

Extension of the time allowed Col. R. C. Duff, president of the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity and Sabine railroad, to file exceptions to the examiner's proposed report to the Interstate Commerce commission, recommending the Duff line be granted permission to build only to a point about two miles above Port Neches and not into Port Arthur and West Port Arthur, has been granted by the commission, according to word received by the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, Saturday, Art L. Burge, manager, said.

The time for filing the exceptions is extended to October 10, and replies thereto to October 20, the communication received by Burge set forth. Col. Duff was compelled to ask for an extension of two weeks on the time allowed for filing his exceptions to the examiner's report to the commission because he found it impossible to prepare his documents in the 10 days originally allowed, Burge said.

Traction Tangle To Be Discussed Monday

Basis for solution of the street car problem in Port Arthur is expected to be laid down at the city commission meeting Monday morning, when President C. H. Bossler of Dayton, Ohio, president of the Port Arthur Traction company, will appear together with the Chamber of Commerce's traction committee.

The commission's ten-day period of "grace" granted the committee to reach a new agreement with the traction company expires Monday. The commission had threatened to pass ordinances opening up the city to jitneys, the plan being halted before third readings of the ordinances when the committee asked for an extension to reach a new basis for settlement.

YMBL DIRECTORATE TO MEET TUESDAY

Postponed from Monday night until Tuesday night, because of pay day falling on Monday, the regular weekly meeting of the Y. M. B. L. board of directors will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping rooms, A. C. Reichle, president of the league, said Saturday. Important business matters are scheduled to come up before the directors, and a full attendance at the meeting Tuesday night is urged, President Reichle said.

GETS LIFE TERM ON MURDER CHARGE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20.—James Carle, 31, was given life imprisonment in the state penitentiary by a jury in the district court tonight for the murder of Newell Lessinger here July 14, 1919.

Lowden Carle, brother, was convicted on his third trial for the murder in the fall of 1921 and received a life sentence. He was pardoned by former Governor Jack Walton and is at liberty.

ROME, Sept. 20.—Premier Mussolini tonight accepted the resignation of Italian Ambassador to the United States, Caetno.

221 FED FREE BY VOLUNTEERS

76 Needy People Helped By Local V-A Unit

Helping 76 needy people in Port Arthur during the period between August 1 and September 20, the Volunteers of America furnished 221 free meals, 62 free lodgings, donated 17 articles of clothing, paid railroad fare for three to seek employment in other places, and secured employment here for 35, according to a report issued Saturday by Captain Mrs. J. R. Slade, in charge of the Volunteers work in this city.

Applicants to the Volunteers for assistance during the time covered in the report totalled 93, but 17 of these were denied help when investigations disclosed four of these were trying to get help from other organizations, and others were professional charity applicants, Mrs. Slade set forth in the report. In addition to help given as shown in the report, 41 persons were otherwise helped.

Plans are going forward for the financial campaign which the Volunteers will put on in Port Arthur October 1 to 15 to raise $5,000 for carrying on their work here during the ensuing 12 months, this amount, with tambourine collections on the streets Saturdays, paydays and holidays, being estimated as sufficient for the needs of the work, Mrs. Slade said.

the caged bird division. Mrs. Frank Y. Low is superintendent of this division and she will be assisted by Mrs. H. O. Mills, Mrs. Bruce Reed, Mrs. A. S. Bailey and Mrs. Frank Keith.

Culinary Exhibits

The culinary department of the fair will also be in charge of women, and in this department bread, loaf cakes, layer cakes, tea cakes and pies will be displayed. The committee supervising the culinary department consists of Mrs. F. E. Gifford, superintendent, Mrs. C. E. Earhart, Mrs. S. E. Schmink, Mrs. T. T. Fitzgerald, and Mrs. T. F. Brooks.

That the woman reigns supreme in the realm of preserving and canning as well as in the realm of culinary arts was evidenced by the fact that the Fair association placed women in charge of the preserves and canned fruits division also. Serving in this division will be Mrs. W. H. McCoy, superintendent; Mrs. George Carter, Mrs. H. L. Woodall, Mrs. C. L. McIver and Mrs. T. M. Andrews.

Arts Department

And, naturally, woman's judgment will govern the art department and the art drafts division. In the art department embroidery, knitting and crochet and miscellaneous articles will be on display. The fancy work committee is comprised of Mrs. H. K. Goodwin, superintendent; Mrs. T. G. Dellinger, Mrs. J. G. Glasgow, Mrs. Dock Schultz, Mrs. C. A. Pearson, and Mrs. John Vaught.

Tryon, Mrs. C. T. Martin, Mrs. Henry Lohmann, Mrs. Ben Vaughan, Mrs. E. P. Baker, Mrs. W. E. Crumpler and Mrs. R. E. Latimer.

Mrs. Frank Timmins is superintendent of this division and serving with her are Mrs. E. T. Welch, Mrs. O. F. Spence, Mrs. I. H. Wheless, Miss Lilly Higginbotham and Miss Dorothy Timmins.

Curios and Relics

One of the most interesting divisions of the fair will probably be the curios and relics division, which will be in charge of Mrs. M. E. Crawford, superintendent; Mrs. O. G. Wilson, Mrs. M. S. Warren, Mrs. Harry Baker and Mrs. C. L. Wignall.

The Camp Fire girls will submit some interesting articles of their work at the fair, included among which will be their ceremonial gowns and bead bands, in addition to which they will have on display some samples of their baking, candy and preserves, which they have learned since becoming Fire Girls. Mrs. R. L. Rutan is superintendent of the camp fire divisions, and she is being assisted by Mrs. C. W. Litherland, Mrs. L. P. Daspit and Mrs. George Drake.

The potted plants department will also be under the supervision of the women, the floral division committee being comprised of Mrs. T. W. Hughen, superintendent; Mrs. C. T. Baker, Mrs. A. L. Humphreys. Mrs Carl Kramer and Mrs. Ada Smith.

PLAN TWO

ment features for the fair. The amusement company carries its equipment on 30 railroad cars, and in the wild west attraction, two American bison are reported as big attractions.

"All fair workers are optimistic, and this means a permanent organization, showing Port Arthurians and this entire section that this city can put things over," Gene Gifford, president of the Fair association, declared Saturday in summing up the prospects for the First Annual Port Arthur fair. "We may not have the oldest or the largest fair, but we can boast one of the best," Gifford said.

Exhibitors' List Growing

List of the exhibitors who have signed up for spaces in the fair buildings for their displays, only a partial list of the number applying for space and now awaiting an allocation, were announced Saturday by fair officials as follows:

Electric Specialty company; Smith-May Motor company; J. E. Conners, Linn Motor company, Bert Hughes C. E. Booz Motor company, E. P. Baker, Philip Inman and company, Crowell-Gifford company, Hodges company, Deutser's, Peoples Gas Company, Goldberg's, Schmink Office Supply company, Consumers Ice and Coal company, Harold Ernstrom, John R. Adams company, Acme Advertising company, Phoenix Furniture company, C. H. Barnes, Briley Plumbing company, Stoneburner Electric company, Scott and Waller, C. M. Dismukes, Jones-O'Neal, Martin Lumber company, Port Arthur Lumber company, Builders Lumber company, Port Arthur Planing mill, Williams Furniture and Hardware company, Port Arthur College, Vaughan-Pace Hardware and Furniture company, Port Arthur Grain company, Port Arthur Ice company, and the Eastern Texas Electric company.

CONGRESSMAN

come and quaff the forbidden brew.

A special invitation was sent to Commissioner Haynes. Hill's idea that if the prohibition unit does not arrest him and his guests for drinking 2.75 per cent cider, then beer of that alcoholic content is legal beverage. And the Maryland congressman is sponsor of several bills before congress to permit the brewing of 2.75 per cent beer.

But no prohibition agents showed up to make the arrest. There were local officials, deputies, constables and under sheriffs a-plenty among the guests in the long lines passing the founts of beer and cider. They were enjoying the affair as much as anyone.

Hilarity ruled on a scale considerably exceeding 2.75 per cent.

Two uniformed policemen near at hand had only smiles for the affair.

By 10 o'clock the last barrel of cider was drained nearly dry and the guest line showed no sign of diminishing.

It was estimated that about 1,500 attended the party.

U. S. ENGINEERS

and raising the Isonzo.

Under the present plans of the engineers for getting the Isonzo out of the ship canal, no dredging operations will be necessary to open the waterway to traffic, according to word from Major Schley and Clarke. A report was started in this city Saturday afternoon that the Gulf Refining company's dredge boat No. 7, which went up the canal early in the afternoon, was on its way to join the government dredge Kimble, ordered up the canal Friday afternoon, at the work of cutting a detour around the capsized ship. George N. Bliss, marine superintendent of the Gulf company, denied the report, and said the No. 7 was bound for the Intracoastal canal beyond Orange to go to work on a section there.

"If all goes well with the righting operations, the Isonzo ought to be ready for pumping out within 36 hours after the steam hoists and cables start getting the ship on even keel again," Clarke said Saturday afternoon.

"I wish it were possible for me to say to a day when ships can get past the blockade, but until we see how the work moves along, it will be impossible to predict when the wreck will be raised and removed."

Auction Sale Possible

Before leaving for Galveston Saturday afternoon, Major Schley said that W. T. Stephenson, of Galveston, an assistant government engineer, will be detailed to personally supervise the salvaging of the Isonzo. The district engineer said he expects to return to Port Arthur Monday or Tuesday to make an inspection of the work. Asked for a prediction as to when the wreck will be out of the way, Major Schley smiled and said, "You've got me there."

"Should the owners or their agents fail to settle with the government for the cost of salvaging the Isonzo and such cargo remaining aboard, the vessel and cargo will be sold at auction," Major Schley said before leaving Port Arthur Saturday afternoon. First definite announcement of the government taking over the wreck was made by Major Schley shortly after noon Saturday, following adjournment of a conference with owners representatives and agents for the marine insurance company underwriting the ship and cargo.

CLAIMS SHADY

$1,250,000 used in perpetrating the fraud upon the public.

"The suit was decided and the court held that Dawes' bank must pay over to the receiver for the benefit of the creditors, not only the amount of the $1,250,000 loan, but also to interest amounting in all to $1,487,854.16.

"Dawes naturally appealed and the case remained in the courts until July 12 of this year. The very day that Dawes was nominated by long distance telephone from the White House, for the office of vice president, the supreme court of Illinois handed down a final decree.

Seven years of fighting back and forth through the courts had whittled down the amount Dawes' bank must pay to $100,000. He had succeeded in reducing his liabilities this much, but never for a moment did he escape responsibility for his astounding cheat upon the public."

Bank Ostracised

The bank mentioned was the La Salle Street National Bank which Wheeler was "headed by William Lorimer," who had retired from the United States senate in somewhat the same manner that Newberry of Michigan retired two years ago. The bank led by Dawes was the Central Trust company, which he still operates. Describing the transaction Wheeler said:

"Examiners of the Chicago clearing house examined the affairs of the Lorimer bank when it began business in May, 1910 and as a result refused to grant its membership in the clearing house association. After May, 1911, the bank was even denied the privilege of clearing through other Chicago banks.

"After Lorimer and his associates then decided to change their national bank into a state bank to be known as the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank. They proposed to turn over the assets of their national bank to the new bank along with its liabilities of course, but they did not propose to put in any additional money.

"Much of the bank's money had been loaned to officers and directors and friends of Lorimer and his assistants.

Out to "Rob the Poor"

"The bank announced a capital and surplus of $1,250,000.

"Under the state banking laws it was necessary to show that amount in cash to the state auditor, but Lorimer's new bank did not have that sum. Efforts were made to get it in Chicago, then in New York and failed. Then Banker Lorimer appealed to Banker Dawes.

"On the afternoon of October 21, 1912, Dawes turned over to Lorimer's new bank the required $1,250,000. The agent of the state auditor of public accounts counted it and issued a certificate authorizing Lorimer's bank to do business. Then the $1,250,000 was handed back to Dawes' Central Trust Company, all in one afternoon.

"The La Salle Street Bank then began doing business with an advertised and certified capital and surplus of $1,250,000 when as a matter of fact was nothing in the bank to represent this sum.

"Dawes never lost control of the money for a moment, nor even during the few minutes it required state auditor to count it.

"Within 20 months Lorimer's bank had been closed and a receivership appointed. Its assets were found to be $2,000,000 less than needed to satisfy depositors and other creditors. Banker Lorimer, with Banker Dawes aiding, had not set out to rob the rich. They were out to rob the poor."

JUDGE O'BRIEN HEARS 8 CASES

And Takes Time to Divorce a Few

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—Eight criminal cases were tried before Judge George C. O'Brien in the 58th district court here the past week. In addition to this he heard one civil case and found time to grant a few divorces.

Included in the week's work was the alleged murder case against Whitney Norris from Port Arthur who was found not guilty. Other cases tried included that of Knott Nicholson for the alleged transportation of liquor, given a 3-year suspended sentence; Harry Patrick, burglary, 2-year sentence, appealed; George Henry, robbery by assault, found not guilty; I. Pacheco, felony theft, 3 years in the reform school; John Sevan, 5 years for burglary; Herbert Bell, 5 years for burglary, and J. L. Jones, given a 1-year sentence for possession of intoxicating liquors.

More Criminal Cases

Judge O'Brien will take up other cases on his criminal docket beginning on Monday morning. The first cases to be called will be that of Earl Fetzner, L. O. Guidroz, Sam Bertaloni, T. S. Poladino and Maybell Anderson, all of Port Arthur. Grand jury indictments charging all five with robbery were returned several weeks ago and all have been released on bond.

In addition to this, Judge O'Brien has 22 cases also set for trial next week and these will be called in the order of their settings. Then on the next Monday, 22 other criminal cases have been set for an order.

Only one case has been set for the 60th court this week. A. C. Davis is scheduled to go to trial on Thursday on a murder charge. Another murder case set for Monday has been continued.

Striking Difference In Birth, Death Rate

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—There is a striking difference in the birth and death rate in Beaumont for the past month according to statistics from the health department office here. The report shows that while there were only 20 deaths among the white population, there were 70 white babies born in one month. The same ratio prevails among the colored people, since there were 47 babies born and only 17 deaths.

Of interest too, is the fact that of the 20 deaths, two were by suicide and two accidental. There were two deaths caused by tuberculosis.

Six of the deaths were among children under 10 years of age. There were four babies that died under 1 year of age and 2 from 2 to 5 years old.

ELLIS TO CLEAR CRIMINAL BOOK

Makes Another Effort to Clean Docket

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—Judge C. N. Ellis, county court-at-law, will make another effort to clear his criminal docket in October. But three weeks can be devoted to these cases, however, since by law the term opens on the first Monday, which is October 6, and ends on the last Saturday, or October 25, which will give Judge Ellis a week's vacation.

Judge Ellis declared that when cases had been called before, and witnesses failed to appear, they would be dismissed. He said that in some instances, persons named in the suits had not been arrested, and could no be found, with the result that there will be no need of keeping such cases on the docket.

100 New Cases

More than 100 criminal cases have been listed on the criminal court docket, however, since August. A report made recently shows that 15 fines were assessed in the county court-at-law in one month for criminal cases, amounting to $442. The highest fine imposed on any persons was for $100. There were four $25 fines, two for $1 and the balance for $5 and costs each.

NEGRO TO FACE 5-YEAR-OLD CRIME

DIPPING VAT AIDS COUNTY

Concrete Cattle Pool to Be Ready October 1

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—Jefferson county cattlemen will be saved thousands of dollars this fall with the completion of a dipping vat and clean pen for cattle on the Santa Fe railroad at the poor farm, county officials say.

The vat is almost entirely of concrete and will be completed by October 1. It was built to conform with regulations of the state sanitary laws and the only other pen of like construction is located at Felicia, between Beaumont and Houston, on the Southern Pacific railroad. A charge of 25c a head is made for cattle dipped there, however; no charge will be made at the new vat at Cheek.

Inspector in Beaumont

Cattlemen last year were forced to drive their stock to Galveston, where they were dipped and then shipped. Under present conditions, the cattle can be shipped from Jefferson county to any part of the state unmolested, since a deputy state livestock inspector is located here and will inspect cattle at the vat.

Cattlemen say that stock will bring 25 per cent more to the head when they are cleaned and dipped before shipment. Half of the expense of building the vat has been been borne by the county and half by the Santa Fe railroad.

The Editorial Mind

In New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Vacations are over and the crowd has returned to New York.

The day after Labor Day the influx became evident. It has increased each day until New York is her bustling, crowding self again, pushing and jamming for every inch of available space.

Broadway, deserted during the summer, is spick and span with the Fall showing of new plays.

Cooler weather has arrived for a protracted visit and the new styles of the season are being displayed in the evening parade.

Over in Fifth avenue, top coats spats and gloves are seen on the men in the afternoon march and the women are sauntering along exhibiting the latest in tailored suits.

Fall is the most pleasant season in New York. The shackles of a torturing summer are thrown off and everything is made ready for the gay winter season, when New York is in its most entertaining mood. Plays are new, audiences are fresh, dancing haunts re-open with new decorations and lavish appointments.

Patrolman James O'Donnell failed to rescue a boy from drowning three months ago, and nearly lost his own life in the vain attempt, because he could not swim.

Yesterday a fellow officer tried to restrain him when he dived into the river in answer to a call for help. But he dived anyway and saved a drowning woman.

"Don't be so amazed," he chided fellow officers on the river bank, after he had made the rescue, "I've been taking swimming lessons."

STEVENSON'S SPORT GOODS STORE TO MOVE

Removal of Stevenson's Sporting Goods store from 300 Procter to 244 Procter, where larger quarters are available, is planned for October 1, Jack Stevenson, manager, said Saturday. Stevenson has operated a store dealing in new, surplus army and navy supplies here for the past two years, recently going into business for himself.

MONEY CZARS GET PEEK AT PRINCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—America's financial heart, Wall street, skipped a few beats today at sight of the young Prince of Wales.

Seemingly everybody in the busiest money market in the world dropped all affairs of business to have a look at Prince Edward. Police reserves from three stations devoted a deal of perspiring effort to make it possible for the royal visitor to get in and out of the swirling crowds

ENGINEERS TAKE CITIZENS' JOB OF GETTING ARMORY FOR PT. ARTHUR

Progressive spirit of Port Arthur's 111th Engineer units in taking upon themselves the responsibility for equipping Port Arthur with an armory was roundly applauded here the other night by Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters, commander of the Second Brigade, 36th Division, Texas National Guard.

Too bad more people did not hear what General Wolters had to say, because Port Arthur's citizen soldiers stand out in this particular endeavor head and shoulders above any other guard unit in the state. The 111th Engineers here are the first in the state to adopt the bond plan of building an armory.

The goal in the bond sale campaign for $20,000 needed to erect the structure is nearly completed, and actual construction is in sight. The members of the units here have done this work themselves, right within their own ranks. Another example of the newer spirit of "get up and do" becoming increasingly prevalent in Port Arthur.

When the armory plan was announced, some sentiment was expressed for a wider movement which would result in an auditorium to meet demand for theaters, conventions, or other gathering place with seating capacity adequate to the city's needs. This manifestly was a different proposition than the Engineers had underetaken. Their function was first to provide adequate quarters for the units here to preserve for all time these units to Port Arthur. The added proposition was one for Port Arthur citizenship, and it failed to respond. So the boys are going ahead.

But in going ahead they have kept in mind the fact that the day must soon come when the auditorium expansion idea must be given consideration, and their plans are laid accordingly. When that time comes the Engineers will have provided a nucleus, and it is to their credit that they have determined, while under no obligation as military units to do so, to keep in mind the community benefit to Port Arthur by such a structure.

This is the first instance in the history of the National Guard in Texas where an organization has taken upon itself the job usually left to the citizenship, that of providing its own armory and later paying the citizens for it instead of having it suppled.

This is a spirit worth while, and if it is typical of Port Arthur we have some great and progressive days ahead.

PORT ARTHUR WOMEN AND THE FAIR

The increased part women are playing in community activities is proving something of an eyeopener to those of us who have jumped to the conclusion that the male citizenship, equipped by nature with fists and brawny arms with which to administer the business punch, are "the cat's whiskers" in the community.

There can be no doubt—and of course there never was a doubt, as a matter of fact—that mere man is due to receive a shock to his sensibilities. Take a look at the fair premium list, if you are one of the few who need any proof.

Port Arthur women have responded in noble fashion to the call of the Fair association. Scores of them have stepped forward and for nearly five weeks to come will devote fully of their time in various departmental work, on committees and as judges.

None can compete with a woman in this work. She brings with it her artistic sense, a keen intuition and a long list of indefinible characteristics, all assets to a cooperative effort of this kind.

The men got up and started the fair. Now the women are going to help them finish it, and it needs just that to make of it the outstanding success which their preliminary efforts have given every indication it will be.

ISN'T HE TOO YOUNG?

Owen D. Young and Charles G. Dawes are responsible for the reparations plan which is going to stabilize Europe and bring prosperity to the world. Those who are on the inside know that Owen D. Young is the real author of the plan and that he speaks for the bankers of America. General Dawes is the republican nominee for vice president.

Owen D. Young will hold the post of Agent General only long enough to set up the machinery of the transfer bureau. Then S. Parker Gilbert Jr., will go to Germany, to Berlin as Agent General for reparations and will be the real financial master of Europe. S. Parker Gilbert will be thirty-two years old on October 13. He is a New Yorker, a college man.

At twenty-five he was a member of the War Loan staff in the city of Washington. At twenty-seven he was assistant secretary of the treasury. At twenty-eight he was promoted to be under secretary, second in command under A. W. Mellon. At thirty he resigned to resume the practice of law with such a career behind him, according to Washington correspondents, as might be the envy of a statesman of seventy.

When Dan Moody announced as a candidate for the office of Attorney General of Texas many prominent lawyers of the state regretted that Moody was too young, that his hair wasn't white and his mustache snaggled. Moody waded in, however, and in the run-off rolled up a majority of 251,000. He received almost a half million votes. He will be in the vicinity of thirty-two when he is called to the high office of Attorney General.

If the wise ones at Washington had banished S. Gilbert Parker Jr. when he made his appearance in Washington a few short years ago perhaps an ancient fossil with his future behind him and the grave just under his nose would be the successor of Owen D. Young as agent general of the Young reparations plan and the financial master of Europe.

Never sneer at youth. There are thousands of old boys who are very dignified and pompous who are in the rut where they started decades ago. Speaking of youngsters who arrived before they were thirty never overlook Alex Gregg of Texas who is Mellon's right hand man and the most amazing tax expert in America.

BIG MONEY MAKERS

Two Ohio men, O. P. and M. J. Swearingen of Cleveland, are the cocks of the railway walk. They began life as little news merchants in a small Ohio village. They entered the railroad industry in 1916 with two million dollars in cash and no railroad experience. Now they are the masters of a huge rail system and are the men who planned and carried out the Van Swearinen merger. Wall Street estimate the paper profits of the brothers at approximately twenty-five million dollars.

They made more than thirteen million dollars on the Lake Erie and Western and first Nickle Plate venture. Wall Street is amazed that the Van Swearingens who began life as news merchants, cleaned up two million dollars in Cleveland real estate ventures and then invaded the railroad world, could have amassed twenty-five million dollars since 1916.

More than this, Wall Street is amazed that the two Buckeyes could have taken the money away from the veteran rail sharks of the street.

News Newsies Organize Own Good Time Club for Winter Fun

More Than 50 Enroll, Form Into Two Football Teams, With Friday Nights Red Letter Recreation Events

"Hey, fellers, we gotta a club wid a football team 'n everything!"

Around the selling corners and routes of the newsies and route boys of The Port Arthur News force, this is the call heard these days.

They have a regular organization, with everything in the way of officials from a president to a janitor, including two sergeants-at-arms, all duly elected in meeting assembled.

Best of all, perhaps, from a prospective member's viewpoint, is the treasurer's report, which shows cash on hand totalling $25, a part of this sum having been given the lads by Port Arthur merchants, and part representing the paid dues of five cents weekly from each member.

Demonstrate Athletic Prowess

Last week two of the star boxers in The News newsies club staged several rounds of fast and furious boxing in the preliminaries to a major boxing event of the Port Arthur Athletic club. Wrestlers challenging all comers at their weight also are numbered among the newsies' club memberships, and both the fistic artists and the neck-crackers regale the fellow-members with their prowess at the regular weekly meetings of the club, held every Friday night at The News office.

Of course with the football spirit in the air, it wouldn't have been natural for a club comprised of over 50 young Americans to get very far along without a football team, and The News newsie club went other organizations one better and got up two football teams. First work out for the squads was held Saturday, and a schedule of games with other teams around town is being lined up. For the next several weeks, at least, the football teams are expected to feature the activities of the newsies club.

Friday Night Fun Night

In addition to the athletic events arranged for each regular meeting on Friday nights, refreshments of lemonade are served, and picture show parties also frequently are given. A drive for more members is one of the projects the newsies club has launched, any boy selling The News or delivering the papers in city route being eligible for membership.

Officers elected by the club recently are as follows:

Curry Walker, president; Edward Gray, vice president; Leoneil Lellerin, secretary; Robert Curtis, treasurer; Wallace Artego, sergeant-at-arms; Sidney Hebert, janitor, and Alfred Turner, sergeant-at-arms.

DISMUKES RESIDENCE NEARS COMPLETION

The new residence for C. M. Dismukes in Dryden Place, built at a cost of about $17,000, is practically completed, and Dismukes will move in Tuesday. Open house for a number of his friends will be held by Dismukes at his new place Sunday afternoon when the visitors will be shown through the home, which is reported by local building men as one of the most up-to-date residences in the city. Features of the house include a vacuum cleaning plant installed in the basement with connections on all of the floors, and built-in bath and plumbing fixtures.

HUBER STORE JOINS PT. ARTHUR CHAIN

Huber Brothers, 237 Procter street, is the latest concern to move to Port Arthur. The new business comes from Ranger and is handling a complete line of supplies for painters and contractors. Paints, glass, wall paper, stains, enamels, picture framing, zinc, lead—everything needed by painters and contractors—is handled.

PHONE HEADS PLAN NEW AMARILLO LINES

AMARILLO, Sept. 20.—The American Bell Telephone company has announced an appropriation of $67,000 for immediate improvements and the extension of their lines in San Jacinto Heights and the Country club district, select residential suburb of Amarillo. The rapid development of that section caused a survey to be made and with the prospects of continued improvement resulted in the announcement made today.

Fairer Sex Here Rolls 'Em And Wraps 'Em Also

Not only do they roll their own, but they wrap their own.

Probably no less than 95 per cent of Port Arthur women roll their own—two inches below, of course—but not an instance has been reported of the more dangerous element using home-made smokes. It's just too common.

It isn't just yet passe, in Port Arthur at least, for a woman to walk up to the cigar and cigarette counter and ask for a package of the cubebs that pacify, so they get around that very easily.

One or two drug stores in town are reported as handling most of the cigarette traffic for women, and here the package of cigarettes are generally wrapped. The customer will generally walk to the rear of the store, confidentially give her order and after a few minutes' wait the neatly wrapped package is given her. It might be toilet soap, or almost anything, but it isn't.

If the cigarette-craving woman has a car—well, it's much easier. What's simpler than have the waiter bring out a package in his pocket and gently and easily place them on the seat?

Cigarette smoking is fairly common, but when it comes to cigar smoking—well, not even Port Arthur has risked that. At least, the clerks don't know about it.

RAILROAD DATA ASKED BY 'KATY'

Managers Hope for Figures From Morgan

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Efforts to ascertain how much it costs to reorganize American railway systems during the past twenty-five years are to be made by reorganization managers of the Missouri-Kansas Texas Railroad pending resumption of the next hearings by the Interstate Commerce commission. The reorganization managers will attempt to gather the financial data to back up their charges of $2,364,249 in the reorganization on the Katy system.

Z. W. Scott, counsel for the Commission, said that they were chiefly interested in discovering what the costs were in the reorganization of the Southern Railway in 1896, Missouri Pacific in 1915, the Union Pacific and the Great Northern in 1896, and the Wabash and Frisco lines in 1917.

NEAR PANIC WHEN TRAINS CRASH IN FOG

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A near panic resulted here today when an elevated express train, jammed with passengers en route to work, crashed into the rear end of a local, hidden by a dense fog which enveloped the city in a blanket of darkness. Windows in both trains were shattered and passengers fought each other for exit until guards were used to restore order. No one was injured.

So dense was the fog that taxicab companies ordered all service except in the downtown district suspended.

HERRIN BAPTIST IN MEET HERE

Evangelistic Services To Open In Port Arthur

Arriving in Port Arthur Saturday night from Herrin, Illinois, Rev. I. E. Lee, pastor of the First Baptist church of Herrin, will open a revival meeting in the First Baptist church here, starting at the morning preaching service at 10:45 a. m., Rev. C. W. Culp, pastor of the church, said.

Subjects announced for Rev. Lee's first sermons in Port Arthur are "In Through the Roof and Out Through the Door" at the morning service, and "A Problem in Multiplication" at the evening service, which will be held on the church lawn, corner of Fifth street and Shreveport avenue, if the weather permits. All of the evening services during the three weeks' revival meeting will be on the lawn, except when the weather makes this arrangement impossible.

Sunday School Address

Rev. Lee will also speak at the Sunday school services of the Berean class for young men at 9:30 a. m. Sunday in the Cameo theater. Invitation to all young men in the city who are not in other Sunday schools was extended by Raymond Cowan, president of the Berean class, to meet with the class Sunday and hear Dr. Lee.

For the revival services at the First Baptist church each evening at 7:30 o'clock, music will be furnished by a chorus choir and an orchestra, under the direction of F. T. Outlaw. Preceding the evening preaching services will be prayer meetings conducted by 10 different departments and organized classes of the First Baptist church and Sunday school, these meetings to start promptly at 7:10 p. m. each day the revival is in progress, according to word from church officials.

Ministerial Head

Dr. Lee is head of the ministerial association of Williamson county, Ill., and one of his sermons during the revival meeting in Port Arthur will deal with the recent trouble in Herrin and the surrounding territory. This special sermon will be an appeal for law enforcement through the regular channels of law and order, it is announced. A version of the disorders in Herrin given by Dr. Lee appeared in an issue of a national magazine during the past few weeks.

"A great three weeks' campaign has been planned for the moral and spiritual uplift of Port Arthur, and all who believe in a better city are asked to assist in making the revival meeting a success. Organized personal work will be carried on during the meeting by all departments of the First Baptist church, and it is hoped that men, women, boys and girls throughout the city who are not now lined up in church work will be interested during this meeting," Rev. Culp, pastor of the church, said Saturday.

YMBL TO SELL FAIR TICKETS

4,000 Season Books Will Be Dispensed

Sale of 4,000 books of season tickets for the First Annual Port Arthur Fair is the piece of work undertaken by the Port Arthur Young Men's Business League since the determination of the league's successful drive for 400 new members, and the organization is pledged to put into this task the best it has, A. O. Reichle, president of the Y. M. B. L. announced Saturday.

Price of the season tickets is $1.25 each, and there are 10 admissions to each book, making the entrance fee only 12 and 1-2 cents, Reichle pointed out. The Y. M. B. 'BLUE SKY' LAW SAVES MILLIONS

Year's Administration Detailed in Report

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—"Blue sky" as an investment proposition is out of style in Texas, according to Finis E. Johnson, head of the "blue sky" division of the Secretary of State's office.

A year's administration of the Texas "blue sky" law has shown this act is successfully saving millions of dollars for the people of the state who otherwise would be a prey to unscrupulous stock salesmen, said Mr. Johnson.

The law went into effect in August, 1923. The fourth quarterly report compiled by Mr. Johnson shows that in the year, 112 permits to sell stock have been granted and fifteen rejected. The applications denied have been for stock companies whose organization of purposes did not comply with the law.

WAR'S EFFECTS ON VACATIONIST

Army Goods Dealer Says Many Seek Open

Because the war taught thousands of doughboys how to live in the open and disclosed new joys in life in the great outdoors, vacationists in ever increasing numbers are loading camp stoves, cots, blankets, tents and all the rest of camping paraphernalia into flivvers, and donning khaki, setting out for the by-ways and hedges instead of packing wardrobe trunks, dolling up in their Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes and riding railroad trains to expensive hotels and summer resorts.

This is the observation of Jack Stevenson, who runs an army store at 300 Procter street, and he bases his information on the rush business done with Port Arthurians going away during the past summer for their vacations.

A Radical Change

"During the past three years the idea of how vacations should be spent has radically changed," Stevenson said. "Whole families outfit for days of simple life on creek banks and in the woods around lakes and in the mountain wilds, while formerly they patronized summer hotels and seaside resorts," Stevenson claims.

Development of tourist camps, better roads and the various attractions offered overland tourists are other factors which make camping life attractive to vacationists these days, according to Stevenson.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, J. T. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

MANY people imagine that eczema or tetter needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Increased Attendance At Pt. Neches School

Special to The News.

PORT NECHES, Texas, Sept. 20.—Increased high school enrollment has forced an extension of quarters in the high school building. With more than 100 enrolled, more than ever before, the high school now occupies five rooms on the second floor. The science room is still located downstairs, and the home economics girls still use the domestic science cottage.

The combined study hall is no longer used, each class now having a room of its own. The largest class of all is the first-year class, with an enrollment of 65. The class is divided into "A" and "B" sections, as none of the rooms in the building is large enough to hold the entire class.

SCOUTING WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Football teams lined up from the membership of the Port Arthur Sea Scouts, and in Troop 16, and two crews of the ship's company named featured the gathering of Port Arthur Scouts this week. The ship of Sea Scouts also adopted as its official colors red and green, and for a motto have "We'll Get There."

Reports from all of the Scout troops indicate attendance is picking up after the summer season, and the meetings are lining up with work and play arranged for the coming fall and winter months, the troops report. Election of officers in Troop 16 resulted in Wesley Prichard being chosen Senior Patrol leader.

TROOP 15

We opened our regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. The Scout oath was said in unison. Roll was called. Only nine members were present. Dues to the amount of thirty cents were collected. One member tried to pass his tenderfoot requirements but almost had "brain fever."

Several games were played as we had no business to attend to. Ernest Higginbotham hurt his arm. One member cried because he did not want to go through the belt line and was so angry he refused to play in the other games.

We closed our meeting after giving the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

RAY BILLEAUD, Scribe.

TROOP 16

We had a "peppy" meeting Friday night with an attendance of twenty-four. After roll was called, Scoutmaster Clements gave us our monthly letters for September and October. This month's letter has our Troop program in it. The program reads as follows:

1. Assembly 7:30 p. m. Fall in by height. Stand at attention.
2. Color ceremony; four Scouts step forward, march out and get American and troop flags. Return, stand facing troop while all are at attention. Salute, pledging allegiance. Place flags. Color guard returns to line.
3. Repeat Scout oath.
4. Prayer.
5. Troop seated by patrols.
6. Short talk on some part of Scout oath by the Scoutmaster or someone designated by him.
7. Roll call by patrols. Patrol leader answers for those in his patrol. If any are absent, he gives reason for same.
8. Dues collected by treasurer through patrol leaders.
9. Reception of new members.
10. Introduction of visitors.

7:50 to 8:15 p. m. Instruction period. 8:15 to 8:30 p. m., separate patrol meetings in different parts of hut to discuss their own business; 8:30 to 8:55 p. m., games; 8:55 to 9:05, closing period, announcements, flag lowering, benediction; 9:05 to 9:20, conference of patrol leaders to discuss next meeting's business.

After the letters had all been distributed, we elected new officers. Wesley Prichard and Mark Painton were nominated for Senior Patrol leader and Wesley won by a two-to-one vote. Other officers elected were: Mark Painton, Bennie Visuet, McRade Womack as patrol leaders, and J. C. Watkins, scribe. Another patrol leader and treasurer will be elected at the next meeting.

The troop wishes to thank Mrs. Clements for the party she gave the troop at her home last Thursday night. Everyone had a most enjoyable time. Football was discussed and a captain, manager and coach was elected. The first practice was held Saturday and others are urged to come out and try for some position on the team.

J. C. WATKINS, Scribe.

"LONE STAR" SEASCOUTS

Seascouts met on board their ship Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m.

Henry Larssen called the meeting to order and the Scout oath was said in unison. The skipper and first junior officer then took charge. The crews were asked to decide on names and colors and the results were as follows: Crew 1, Octopus, colors black and gold; Crew 2, Wrecking Crew, colors blue and green; Crew 3, undecided. The ship then decided to adopt red and green as its official colors and the motto decided upon was "We'll Get There." Some of the by-laws were re-written. Twenty-five cents a month was decided upon for dues and certain penalties were made for those who fail to pay them promptly. New regulations in regard to membership and what would constitute a quorum was decided upon. The two principle points to become a member are, first, the candidate must attend at least four meetings and if he comes from another troop he must present an honorable discharge from the troop from which he comes.

After the meeting most of the members got together and discussed football and lined up a team, the first practice being held Saturday. A regular meeting of the Council Ring was also held after the regular meeting.

Re-organization plans are to be completed at the next meeting and it is vital that every member be present to discuss some of the things to be put up before the troop.

MURRAY McCOY, Yeo-man.

Colleen Moore Says Everybody Is Capable of Kindly Deeds

Like a long-distance telephone wire stretching from New York to Hollywood, a fine, slender thread of vast magnetic power links the heart and the brain, the seats of sentiment and of reason.

At one end sits the tiny prompter of kindly deeds. At the other is the inciter of justice—cold and calculating though it may be.

There is no human method of gauging the strength of either factor, or of determining which one is the better schooled in the gentle art of argumentation. Some insignificant interference on the line, some fragmentary loss of fleeting emotion, may overbalance reason or destroy sentiment.

So coagitates Colleen Moore:

"When someone goes through life trying to do little things to help others, they say the heart rules the head. When someone else thinks first of self and labors only to gratify private ends they say the hand rules the heart.

"I don't believe either is correct. Most things, I have found, have a balance and a counter-balance in this scheme of creation. So I prefer to think of heads and hearts being like two persons arguing over a telephone wire, each intent upon having the last word and thereby deciding what they will do together.

"Each brings forward the points expected to sway the other. Each attempts to overbear the other. In the end, the one with the greatest appealing power wins the words battle and the deed is done—speed like an arrow from the bow and aimed at a target it may or may not hit.

"I have never known a man or woman who was not capable of some kindly action. Nor have I known one who could not be unkind in some way. It all depends upon which orator of the inner thought wins the skirmish of the moods over that slender, gossamer line which links the sunny land of charity with the austere realm of selfishness.

"We are or we are not. We will or we won't. We may or we may not.

"These make up the everyday problems of life into which both head and heart must necessarily enter. Their joint judgment, perhaps arrived at only after a fluctuating flight, just decides the measure of our action."

CAN FLAPPER BE PERFECT

Stars Give Ideas of Disputed Subject

"What is your idea of a perfect flapper?" This question was popped at prominent members of the cast of "The Perfect Flapper," starring Colleen Moore and scheduled to open at the Pearce theatre Tuesday.

Sydney Chaplin, who plays in this picture one of the best comedy parts of his career, opined as follows: "One should take no stock in stories about flappers being 'wild.' In the present-day world, they are no wilder than were their grand-mothers in their day. I hope bobbed hair has come to stay. It is so much more chic than the old style. Also, it is more hygienic, easier to wash, and easier to dry and comb."

Frank Mayo, leading man for Colleen Moore, says: "I believe the idea that flappers of today are worse than those of previous generations is due chiefly to the enormous amount of publicity given them these days. I sincerely believe that at heart they are no different."

Phyllis Haver, former Mack Sennett bathing beauty, makes a counter-attack: "A great deal is said about the 'flapper'; what about the 'cakeater' and the 'jellybean'? No one makes any alarming cry about 'what is happening to our manhood?' Instead the jolly, little, fun-loving flapper is held up before the public gaze."

Lydia Knott, who recalls the flapper of twenty years ago, has this to say: "Human nature, to my mind, has always been the same. This applies to immature personalities as well as older folk. The girls of my day were held more under control than they are now, but I think the modern flapper is simply a product of the times—frank, and daring."

40 COLLIN COUNTY SCHOOLS SEEK AID

McKINNEY, Sept. 20.—Forty rural schools of Collin county have applied to the county superintendent for aid from the state aid fund. The amounts sought range from $100 to $1,000. Applications must be in the hands of the state board of education by October 15.

JAMES CRUZE, who sprang from the bottom rung of the production ladder to the top through directing "The Covered Wagon."

'The Covered Wagon' Called Greatest Play Ever Filmed

One of the greatest photoplays ever made is the popular verdict of James Cruze's "The Covered Wagon," which will be the feature at the Peoples theatre this week. That is the prediction made not only by Mr. Cruze himself, but by those who have seen the picture and who hail it for its [illegible], impressiveness and extraordinary realism.

Perfect realism, a strong love theme, tremendous dramatic action, thrills that are utterly unlike the ordinary sort; a background of real newness to the screen, where the camera has never before been ground; all these facts, coupled with the splendid cast of virtually 3,000 men and women, certainly indicate a picture that is worthy of any director's enthusiasm. And James Cruze is enthusiastic. He has believed in the picture from the start and with each day of shooting, sometimes under conditions almost unbelievably difficult, his enthusiasm has grown. Nor is he alone in his belief for every person in the drama of the old-time western days shares his convictions.

The story with the vast sweep of the western plains for background, across which wind the "covered wagons" with their human freight, is essentially good picture material. The plot is dramatic with the interest well sustained, and the story unfolds like a stirring panorama of an earlier day.

The theme deals with the adventures of a gallant young officer of the American army forced by a rival's enmity to clear his name of an undeserved stain, that of being a cattle-thief, and to win his bride under heavy difficulties. J. Warren Kerrigan is the man, Lois Wilson the girl, and Allan Hale the scheming villain. This trio does the major part of the acting, and to them along with the director, goes the credit for this superb production. Others in the cast are Charles Ogle, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall, Guy Oliver and John Fox.

Dr. Armtsorng	Sam deGrasse

The screen villian, Eric Von Stroheim, comes to the Liberty theater Wednesday in the production, "Blind Husbands."

As a former lieutenant in the Austrian army, von Stroheim portrays the arrogance and supreme conceit of such an officer in "Blind Husbands," where the scenes are laid in the Tyrolean alps during the days just after the close of the war.

In a fashionable mountain resort, the lieutenant meets Margaret Armstrong, wife of a famous doctor. She is a loved but neglected wife, and falls prey to the army officer. The fate of the lieutenant and his escapades forms the theme of "Blind Husbands."

'The Covered Wagon' Film Classic of '48, Say Critics of Screen

An epic of the early west is James Cruze's production, "The Covered Wagon," the feature at the Peoples theater.

The features embraced in this story are many and varied and include among others, the start of 350 covered wagons from Westport Landing (now Kansas City), in 1848. The terrors of fording freshet rivers, prairie fires and the like are depicted with great realism. A buffalo hunt is one of the most exciting scenes. Old Fort Bridger with a night attack and fight by day with Indians, are shown. The dividing of the trails to Oregon and California at old Fort Hall, a touch of the gold fever in California, magnificent mountain shots and a culmination of the romance with the establishment of one of the first homesteads in Oregon—these are all incidents in a picture that bristles with big scenes.

Such historical characters as Kit Carson, Jim Bridger and Bill Jackson, scouts and typical western characters are portrayed.

The emotional surge of stirring war times, with the relieving theme of romance and pepped up with action and suspense all combine in the special production "The Spirit of the U. S. A.," which will play at the Cameo theater Sunday through Thursday for the benefit of the 111th Engineers armory and auditorium.

The leading roles in the production are played by Mary Carr and Johnnie Walker, who take the parts of a young girl "back home" where troubles and excitement little less important than those of the young man "over there." But for all of the dark days there are dozens of silver ones, and upon this the picture theme is worked out.

At the Pearce in "The Last of the Duanes," Buck Duane meets Jenny Wilson and her aged father and after helping them fix a wagon wheel extends to them the hospitality of his home. The pair are traveling westward seeking a home and all Buck's pleading fails to deter them, and after a short rest they continue their journey.

At a dance Duane has a fight forced on him by Cal Bain over a girl. Bain is expelled from the dance hall. Days pass and Bain goes looking for Buck. Young Duane, whose father was a gunfighter who died in a shooting fray, has promised his mother not to use a gun, except in self-defense. Bain meets Buck and flings insults, impelling Duane to battle. Bain fires first, but is dropped by Duane's shot. Buck rides off to wait until the matter is dropped.

Sheriff Hawkins, a bully who rustled cattle under cover of his office, orders Jenny Wilson and her father to move on. When Jenny pleads with Hawkins he attempts to embrace her. The father fires a wild shot to district Hawkins, who retaliates by killing him before the girl's eyes. Hawkins takes the girl with him.

After several adventures Buck Duane joins an outlaw band headed by David Bland. Jenny tells Buck the events that have passed since they saw each other.

Buck helps Jenny to get free. Bland, warned of the supposed affair between his wife nad Duane, returns. Duane, wounded, kills Bland. Fearing that they will be found, Duane seeks a haven for the girl, leaving with her a revolver for defense.

Buck, returning for Jenny, finds the gun where the girl left it.

Later, wrongly accused of a woman's murder, Buck clears himself. Pursued by the sheriff and his gang, Buck makes a hair-raising escape slipping, dropping, sliding over wet rocks, down a narrow, treacherous waterfall.

VANCE TRIMMED AFTER 15 WINS

Brooklyn Drops Down to Third Place

GENTLEMEN of the movies who specialize in making excitement out of bombs or custard pies hardly could have improved upon the hilarious wildness that broke out yesterday in the major leagues.

Pie Traynor, the slippery slim of the Pittsburgh Pirates sped his long legs from first to home on a single in the 11th inning and beat the Brooklyn Robins, 5 to 4.

Pittsburg went into second place, eight points behind the Giants, and Brooklyn fell into third place, three points behind the Pirates.

The Pirates scored two runs from first by wild base running ahead of a single and stopped Dazzy Vance, premier pitcher of the year, after he had won 15 games in a row.

Cubs Wallop Giants in 12th, 7-3—Senators Lose in 10th, 15-14

GROH'S INJURY JINXES GIANTS

Cobb's Wild Yell Leads to Yank Loss

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Five singles and an error by Jimmy O'Connell in the 12th inning gave the Chicago Cubs four runs and a 7 to 3 victory over the New York Giants in the second game of the series.

The Giants had to use one of the craziest lineups ever seen on the Polo Grounds. Groh, injured in yesterday's game, was unable to play and McGraw tried many combinations, Young playing right field and second base, and Kelly, the regular first baseman, playing center field and third base.

The Giants used 19 players. They used eight pitchers—five for regular duty, one (Nehf) for an outfielder, one (Bentley) for a pinch hitter and one (McQuillan for a pinch runner

COBB'S WHOOP CAUSED SHAWKEY'S WILD PITCH

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—After he had allowed the Tigers to fill the bases with none out on two hits and a pass, Shawkey was upset by Cobb's wild yell from second base and cut loose a wild pitch that allowed Manush to score the winning run, Detroit winning their second successive game from the Yankees, 6 to 5.

SENATORS WIN LEAD AND LOSE IT IN TENTH

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—The St. Louis Browns defeated the Washington Senators 15 to 14 in a hectic ten-inning game here today.

Goslin of the Senators cracked out two homers and Williams hit one. H. Rice hit safely in his 27th consecutive game. The Browns used four pitchers and Washington five. Marberry lost the game in the tenth when with the bases full he threw wild to centerfield, allowing the winning two runs to cross the plate. The Senators retain their one-game lead.

Billy Evans Sizes Up Six Managers Hot in Fight For Pennants

HUGGINS

Miller Huggins, mite manager of the New York Americans, knows as much baseball as any man in the game. Huggins, however, works on the theory that every major league player also knows something about the national pastime.

In a great many cases Huggins puts it up to the judgment of his players, particularly at the bat. Often he suggests a certain move but always tells the player to shift, if making such a play seems impossible.

In the crisis, Huggins' word is law, but must be followed to the letter, but at other times he permits the players to think for themselves, thereby developing initiative and confidence.

Huggins never criticizes a player in public. When he takes a player to task it's always in the seclusion of the club house. His methods have been very successful.

M'GRAW

No manager in the major leagues exerts a greater influence over his men than John McGraw of the Giants. McGraw's word is final in all things pertaining to the play of his club. Woe to the player who fails to obey instructions.

Some idea of how McGraw dominates his club can be gotten from his system in the last three world series. It seemed that he signaled for every ball pitched. Some of it may have been camouflage, but it's a safe bet that McGraw did the calling in the pinch.

Quick to pardon errors of commission, McGraw raves at the athlete who pulls a "bone." Likewise the player who fails to give his best efforts never fails to hear from McGraw. His methods have been most successful.

HARRIS

Stanley Harris, youngest of major league managers, is a diplomat. Much of his remarkable success in his first year as manager has been due to his expert knowledge of his men. He encourages the player who is sensitive, pans the athlete inclined to overstep. Harris handles no two players on the Washington club alike.

Harris has the knack of praising or taking his players to task, in such a way that harmony always reigns supreme. No major league club has better spirit than Washington. Harris says spirit, more than anything else, has made his club a pennant contender.

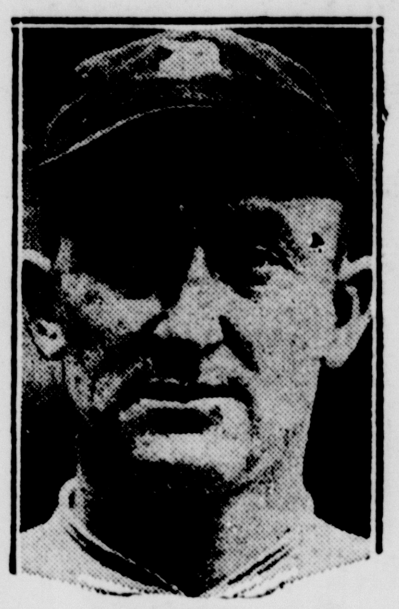
Popular with his men, doing everything he asks his players to do, Harris is getting results. A star as a player, he bids fair to win equal fame as a manager.

ROBINSON

No manager in the majors is quite like Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn. He is more of a father to his athletes than manager. Few leaders are able to get more out of a player than "Robbie." He is a firm believer in kind words. He coaxes rather than drives. Has been unusually successful in handling players discarded by other managers as impossible.

Robinson believes in comradery as one of the best ways to develop a winning ball team. The story is, that during all home stays of the Brooklyn club, the players gather once a week for a "big feed" in the club house, Robinson acting as chef.

At such meetings a lot of the arguments that arise on the field in the heat of passion are ironed out, and any ill feeling that may have existed erased. Robinson is a popular leader. Players are always anxious to join his team.



COBB

Daring, aggressive, brilliant and brainy, are just a few of the adjectives that fit Ty Cobb as a player. In the role of manager Cobb leads his men just as he plays.

Cobb is essentially a driver. He does everything well and seeks to get as much out of his players. However, all players do not possess the brain or ability of Cobb, so that such a system doesn't always meet with success. A player lacking in courage gets little consideration from the Detroit manager.

Cobb is the fighter. He gives nor asks no quarter. He has instilled that spirit into his team. Cobb dominates the play of the Detroit club after the manner of McGraw of the Giants. Practically every move made by Detroit at the bat or in the field is Cobb strategy. Since assuming the role of manager in addition to star player, his clubs have always been pennant contenders.

McKECHNIE

Bill McKechnie, a mighty good player in his day, is along the type of Manager Stanley Harris of Washington as a manager. McKechnie is a good judge of human nature, and he handles his players accordingly, in an effort to get the best possible work out of them.

McKechnie lacks the fire of Harris. This is shown in the play of the clubs. The Washington team has the old fighting spirit. No less a National League star than Rogers Hornsby, says he rates the Pittsburgh club the best in the National league but lacking in fight.

In developing young stars, no manager has met with more success than McKechnie. The Pirates appear more strongly fortified than any other National League club, certain to be a pennant contender for years.

Beaumont High Has Easy Time Defeating Shreveporters, 15-3

Louisiana Half Breaks Arm Bucking Heavy Purple Line; Hightower and Saxe Stars

BY L. L. ENGELKING
News Sport Editor

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 20.—The purple of Beaumont high easily defeated Shreveport High here this afternoon, 15 to 3, in a slow-going and somewhat apathetic game, entirely what was expected under a heavy sky. Rather good football was shown, considering the earliness of the season, although Beaumont has been training for a good many weeks. A crowd of more than 3,000 saw the game at Magnolia park.

Beaumont was clearly a better team than Shreveport, more so than the score indicates, for the ball was never in Beaumont territory until the final quarter when the Louisianians turned to the last-minute forward passing attack. The Shreveporters once worked the ball to Beaumont's 15-yard line, but there was no serious threat. A number of the visitors' passes were completed for good gains, but as many of them were intercepted the effectiveness of the air threat was thus dulled. Shreveport had a good line, although there was a weak spot at right tackle, that held the purple eleven a number of times.

The only injury of the game, but a serious one, nevertheless, was when Campbell, Shreveport back, tried to buck through the center of the Beaumont line in the second period. When Campbell was picked off the field, diagnosis revealed that both bones in his left arm, just above the wrist, had been broken.

Hightower Runs 95 Yards to Touchdown But Called Back for Clipping Penalty

Tripping up on the rules spoiled things a couple of times—once for Beaumont, once for Shreveport. At the opening of the third quarter, Hightower, a senior noted for his prowess on the diamond but playing his first game of football, made a perfect run through the entire Shreveport team for a touchdown. It was a 95-yard run, and no Shreveport player ever reached the speeding Beaumont fullback.

But the miss-fire on it came when Gober clipped Ledbetter from behind the Shreveport 30-yard line, Hightower running along fully ten yards ahead of the clipping stunt. Gober had just gone into the fray and was anxious, but overdid himself. Ledbetter was clearly out of the play and there was but one thing to do—call back Hightower and penalize Beaumont 15 yards from the place of the foul. It was perhaps an inexcusable stunt, but it is also perhaps easier to forgive. Coach Dimmitt immediately jerked Gober for the clipping and put in Hunter, who played a good game.

Shreveport slipped up on a banana peel in the same quarter when on the kickoff the ball pounded over the goal line, one of the Shreveport players having touched it. Brook, Purple end, played a smart game when he loped along after the Shreveport men ahead of him, and cautiously passed the last of them—still unaware of anything wrong—and fell on the ball. It was a touchdown—anybody's ball to fall on back of the goal line.

Beaumont's first scoring was done early in the first period, when Hightower sent a beautiful dropkick between the bars from the 35-yard line. Thruoghout the first half the two teams pounded along, without any headway on either side, although the ball was constantly in Shreveport territory. But Shreveport would halt the Beaumonters on fourth downs and with the wind favoring first one and then the other punter, touchdowns failed. Bad receiving of punts, with a good many fumbles on other plays, exactly what might be expected in an opening high school game, somewhat marred the game.

After the "trick" touchdown for which Brock deserves much credit for using his head, Beaumont failed in try-for-point on a line play, making the score 15-0.

The first touchdown was made soon after Hightower's 95-yard run had gone for naught when the ball was carried down on line plunges, Beaumont hammering on Shreveport's right side of the line, Saxe and Hightower doing the heavy work. Hightower made the touchdown, but his placekick after touchdown failed.

Shreveport at least saved a shutout in the final quarter when Hanna placekicked 27 yards for a three-point goal. The feature of this quarter was a beautiful 32-yard pass from Phelps to Hanna that was almost good for a touchdown.

Half a dozen or more high school scouts saw today's game, representatives being present from Port Arthur, Galveston, Houston, Orange, Sour Lake and other schools. A number of Port Arthur players saw the game. Beaumont plays in Port Arthur Armistice day.

The new rule abolishing the earthen tees for kicking made little difference, as had been predicted this summer. Practically the same yardage was made on the kickoffs.

Wandsworth, England, is fostering a brood of chicks hatched in an incubator.

Leach to Hurl for Rusty Davis' All-Stars Today

PLAYERS WILL SPLIT ON GATE

Winners to Take All Here Today

MACK LEACH, hurling for the Port Arthur All-Stars this afternoon, will be pitching against some powerful competition on the Beaumont All-Stars team this afternoon on Lakeshore diamond at 3:30. It will be the starter of a series, the second to be played in Beaumont next Sunday between two picked teams—one managed by Rusty Davis, the other by Hank Doty.

Winners will take all this afternoon, the proceeds being split among the players with the exception of Tommy Morgan and Iglesias, Elks players, who would injure their amateur standings by accepting pay.

Lineup Given Changes

Slight changes were announced in the lineups last night, Romero being taken off the slate while Corley will go to the field, Bagwell of Galveston not playing for Port Arthur after all. Rusty Davis will hold down first. Hooker will be on second, Iglesias at short and Frank Morgan on third. Trauth and Fulbright will round out the outfield, with Leach and Smith as the battery. Karnaky and Tommy Morgan will be in reserve.

SPLIT RACE IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

54 Grid Teams Listed In Conference A

By ROY B. HENDERSON

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 20.—High school football coache in all parts of the state are working their squads overtime preparing for the opening of the season, which will, in many cases, occur this week-end. Everything is in readiness at the University of Texas interscholastic league office to conduct again the state championship series. The new plan calling for a division of schools will go into effect this fall. Schools having 350 or more enrolled in the high school will compete in Conference A, while schools with less than 350 will take part in Conference B.

The state is divided into 16 sections for the B teams and eight sections for the A teams. Conference B sectional championships are to be determined by November 1, and Conference A championships about a week later. After the teams have been eliminated down to 16, they will compete together in the race for state championship. Fifty-four teams are listed in Conference A.

None After October

The last few days a large number of acceptances of the plan have been received here, indicating that the schools are on notice to the rule that none will be accepted after October 1. This is an absolute deadline, and no school which does not notify the state office of its intention to play under the plan by then will be allowed to take part. Another important requirement is that schedules shall be submitted to the state office by October 1, so that if necessary games may be re-arranged in order to facilitate the eliminations.

Up to date the following teams have accepted for Conference A, besides more than 200 teams for Conference B:

Section 1—Amarillo, Electra, Lubbock, Plainview, Vernon, Wichita Falls.

Section 2—Abilene, Breckenridge, Brownwood, Cisco, Comanche, Eastland, Ranger, San Angelo, Sweetwater.

Section 3—Cleburne, Polytechnic (Ft. Worth), Mineral Wells, Weatherford.

Section 4—Corsicana, Ennis, Hillsboro, Terrell, Waco, Waxahachie.

Section 5—Oak Cliff (Dallas), Forest Hill (Dallas), Denison, Greenville, McKinney, Paris, Sherman, Sulphur Springs.

Section 6—Athens, Crockett, Jacksonville, Livington, Lufkin, Marshall, Nacogdoches, Palestine, Texarkana, Tyler.

Section 7—Beaumont, Ball High (Galveston), Central High (Houston), Heights, Sr., High (Houston), Port Arthur, Orange.

Section 8—Austin, Corpus Christi, Brackenridge (San Antonio), Main Avenue High (San Antonio), Temple.

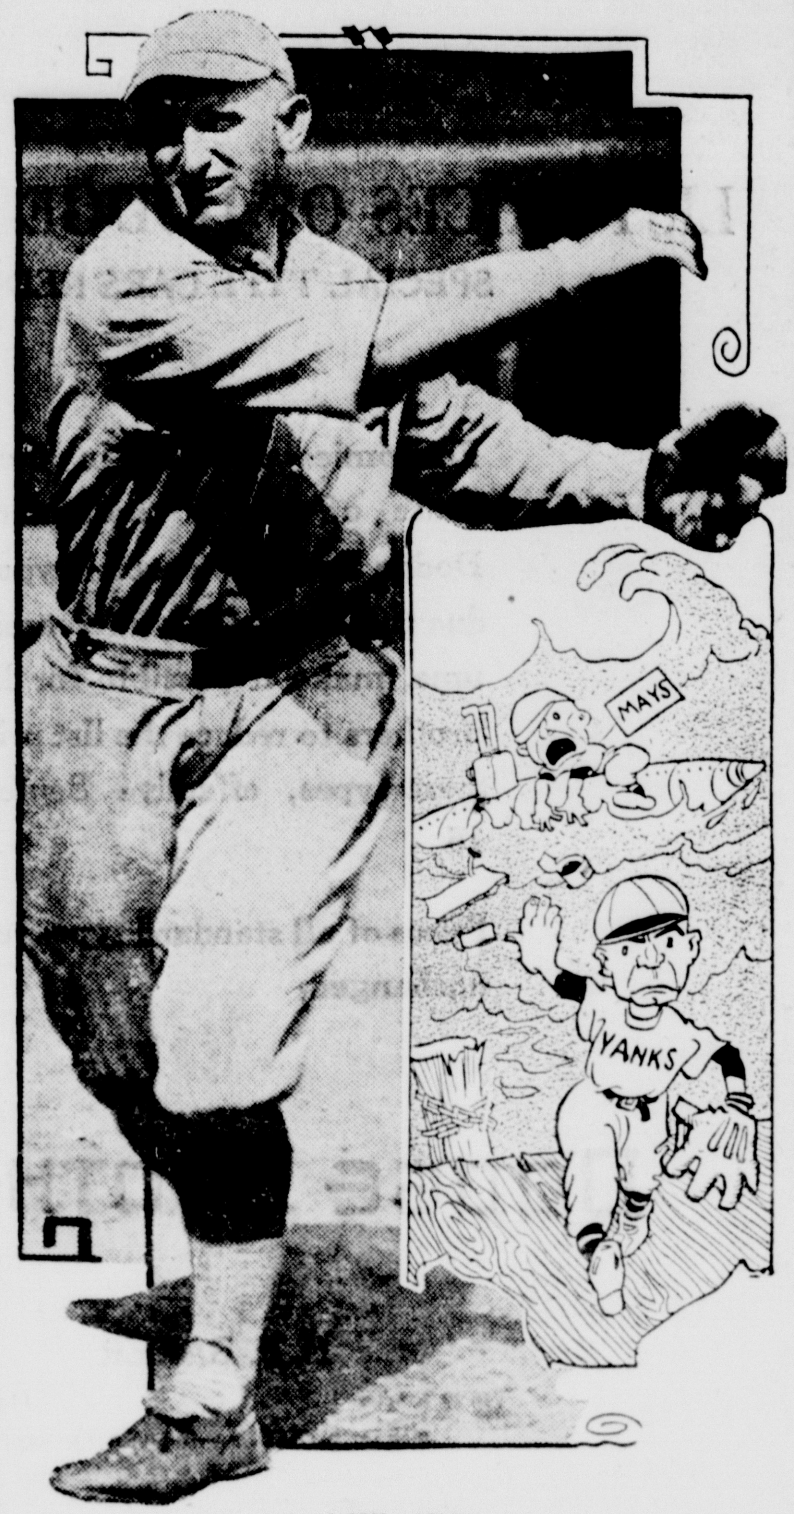
Submarine Carl Mays Wasn't Good Enough For Yankees But Stars for Cincinnati Reds



CARL MAYS

CINCINNATI, Sept. 18.—Carl Mays wasn't good enough to pitch for the Yankees in the American league, so Miller Huggins turned him adrift.

"Go your way and blessings upon your fast ball," intoned the goodly Huggins.

It was the American league belief that Mr. Mays' fast ball needed blessings. It seemed to have little else.

Mays went to Cincinnati in the National league, a club with many star pitchers, including Donohue, Rixey, Luque and Benton.

Hendricks, who managed the club, told interviewers in the spring he was not counting heavily on Mays. "If he comes through all right, if doesn't we won't worry."

Mays was late starting, but once started he came with a rush. At times he has stood out as the star of the Reds' staff.

JONES, TUOHY TO MEET HERE

World's Champion Booked for Port Arthur

The opening of the most extensive wrestling season ever for Port Arthur is slated for Wednesday night when the redoubtable John Paul Jones of Houston meets Vic Tuohy of Boston on the Elks theatre mat. This will be only a starter, for definite and positive word was received yesterday from Promoter Wallace of Houston that Strangler Lewis—yes, the world's champion—would be brought here during the winter to put on an exhibition. Lewis' appearance here will be one of six on a southern tour.

No less than seven or eight wrestling matches have been booked for Port Arthur already by Wallace, and the Jones-Tuohy affair is only a starter, for the entertainment will continue at a fast pace.

The two wrestlers, Jones and Tuohy, will arrive here Tuesday and will both work out at the Eureka club in anticipation of the strenuous affair in the offing for Wednesday. Wallace will arrive Monday to get things all set for the season opener, for the largest crowd in some time is expected to hail wrestling back into the port city.

PAUL JONES

Who needs no great amount of introduction to Port Arthur wrestling fans. Jones, who is the class of the south, only Friday night took down George Actor at Houston for his third defeat in four attempts. Jones has twice defeated Actor at Houston, gotten a draw once, and on another occasion decisively defeated the "pride of Port Arthur" on the Elks theatre mat. Jones wrestles Vic Tuohy of Boston here Wednesday night as the opening affair of Port Arthur's winter wrestling season.

HAGEN DEFEATS BARNES TWO UP

Third Time to Capture Pros' Title

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Sept. 20.—Walter Hagen, holder of the British open golf championship, annexed another title this afternoon by defeating Jim Barnes of New York in the finals of the national professional golf tourney. It was Hagen's third time to win the title, Barnes having won twice previously.

Hagen finished the 36-hole match two up on Barnes.

It was easily Hagen's match throughout the first 18 holes. Barnes was erratic at times and failed to play the brand of golf that carried him into the finals. Hagen took six holes and Barnes two during the morning round.

When the players took the course for the afternoon play Barnes came back in sensational fashion. He halved three holes with Barnes, meeting him play by play and was only two behind at the 36th hole. With a chance to tie the score on the last hole, Barnes dubbed a shot.

New System of Fat Reduction

Thousands of men and women each year regain healthy, slender figures this way. You, too, can take off your excess flesh in this same pleasant manner. No need for violent exercises or starvation diets. Just take one small Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and before going to bed. Latest Advancements In Autos Taken Together Almost Reach Perfect Car

ONE AT TIME, MAKERS CLAIM

Cost Holds Back Many Improvements

Take the latest advancement or refinement in each of the automobiles of 1924, put them into one car and you will come nearer than ever before to the perfect car.

There's the traffic transmission of the Chandler, the one shot lubricating system of the Cleveland, air cleaner, Duco finish, four-wheel brakes, balloon tires and other improvements adopted by one or more cars, but not yet by all. Put all these together and the result should be a more wonderful auto than exists today.

Yet, facing these possibilities, manufacturers have still to combine them on one chassis.

The greatest hindrance to their combined adoption by a single auto maker is possibly their cost. A medium-priced motor car may still remain in its class with the addition of a single improvement. But two or more such additions toward perfection might result in bankruptcy for the manufacturer if he doesn't raise the cost of the car.

And they might bring on bankruptcy, if he does.

One at a Time

So, until we find a way to substitute an improved mechanism for an older form in an auto, with practically no additional cost, we must be satisfied with the kind of "new" cars we are getting today.

Perhaps, with the gradual adoption of improvements year by year, a car will eventually come forth as nearly perfect as is humanly possible to make it and at practically the same cost as in former years. It will be a product of the keen competition that exists in the automotive trade today. It will be practically the last step in the concerted endeavor to give the motorist something better at no additional cost to him.

In this search for "something better," manufacturers direct their efforts along two channels.

Improvements Stay

One kind seeks improvements in the car. Another comes forth with a "change."

Between which there is a great difference.

A motorist may get "something better" when the car that used to be a six is now an eight, or when the lines of the body are materially changed. But there is considerable doubt whether an improvement has been effected.

On the other hand, substitution of an easier form of lubrication for the old method is unquestionably an improvement. It is the kind of "something better" that will take part in the make-up of the forthcoming "perfect car."

A process of elimination is in progress even today, by which mere changes are adopted and abandoned, while improvements remain. The auto owner is the final arbiter.

If cost alone were the criterion, the perfect car is here.

It isn't the Locomobile or Rolls-Royce, either. There are cars that compare in price with these, almost as they do to the Ford.

In San Francisco, a manufacturer is thinking of reducing the price of his products from $75,000 to $25,000 each, and produce them in quantity lots. The car is called "Heine-Velox." It has a 12-cylinder motor, develops 150 horsepower and can go over 100 miles an hour.

Besides the ordinary every-day improvements on average "high-priced" cars, the Heine-Velox has a gasoline tank that holds 52 gallons, a reserve fuel tank, reserve water tank, a seven-gallon oil tank from which the crankcase can be filled while the car is running, and many other such conveniences.

A Lancaster, made in England for the Maharajah of Alwar, is so constructed as to run from high into reverse without clashing of gears. It merely slows itself down and backs up with one operation.

That car runs near to the $100,000 mark in price.

SPEED POLICE BUY CHRYSLER

Outruns Motorcycle Cop on Slippery Road

Here's a new wrinkle in demonstration. The West Virginia state police bought a Chrysler six following one of the oddest on record.

G. M. Davis, manager of the Tri-Motor Sales Co., Maxwell-Chrysler dealers of Clarksburg, W. Va., the home town of John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, was in a hurry to reach Fairmont, 25 miles away. He was in such a hurry that his Chrysler did it at night in the rain over slippery roads in 30 minutes.

While running along at 50 miles an hour he noticed a state trooper behind him. "I supposed he was chasing me," he said later, "as there was no one else I could see who needed to be chased for speeding. But I stepped on it."

"Some time after I reached Fairmont the trooper rode in. He said he had endeavored to catch me for 15 miles and supposed I must have been at least seven miles ahead of him when I reached Fairmont. The damage was $56.50, but the trooper was so thoroughly sold by my inadvertent demonstration that the state bought one a few days later. I call it the best arrest for speeding that I have ever received."

The Chrysler is now being used to accomplish what the trooper's motorcycle couldn't do—to catch speeders.

Auto Dealers Meet In Atlantic City

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—Completion of the program for the National Sales Congress, to be conducted in Atlantic City September 29 and 30 by the National Automobile Dealers' Association is announced at N. A. D. A. headquarters here today. The dates as announced have been officially fixed and are one week later than had been originally proposed, when the N. A. D. A. appealed to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce for operation for the sales congress program.

Executives of the N. A. D. A. in making the announcement of the Atlantic City date, said that it had been decided after insistent demands on the part of automobile dealers, to proceed with at least a few of the Sales congress meetings regardless of what without waiting for the N. A. C. C. on the proposal that the manufacturers should bear a part of the $50,000 cost of the entire sales campaign. The National Automobile Dealers' Association had already made available funds for use in the sales congress effort and the decision to proceed without waiting for the N. A. A. C. to take action is September and October was caused by the need for immediate action. The N. A. D. A. officials say that if they waited for the N. A. C. C. decision, before preparing their program and making arrangements, that it would be impossible to obtain speakers, to obtain hotel accomodations and many other items that must be anticipated in a project of this size.

PHILIP INMAN HANDLES OLDS

Will Continue Agency for Chevrolet

The Philip Inman Motor company announced they have secured the agency for the Oldsmobile in this territory. This, in addition to the popular Chevrolet which they have handled for years, shows that this firm is rapidly branching out in the motor world.

On the other side of the world an Oldsmobile has duplicated the record made just about a year ago in this country when one of the first of the present six cylinder models traveled from New York to Los Angeles in high gear. The most recent feat was a similar transcontinental run made in Australia.

In both cases the first, second and reverse gears were removed and the transmission sealed with only high gear in it. The Australia record was made under the direction of Boyd Edkins, Ltd., Oldsmobile dealers in Sydney, Australia, a strictly stock car being used. It traveled 2,000 miles in its coast-to-coast run.

The record breaking run in this country was made last fall in an Oldsmobile six driven by Cannon-Ball Baker. Some of the worst mountain roads in this country were successfully negotiated during the 3,674 mile trip. The average fuel consumption was 28.7 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Only one and one-half pints of oil were used. Upon its arrival in Los Angeles, this same Oldsmobile made a record speed trial of 68 miles an hour on the Beverley Hills Speedway, and then made the run of 481 miles from Los Angeles to San Francisco in 10 hours and 49 minutes.

Since then the car has been touring the country under the supervision of Oldsmobile distributors, and now, at the conclusion of its first year of service, more than 30,000 miles—equal to six years' average driving—have been recorded on its speedometer.

Recently the Oldsmobile reached Muskegon, Mich., where it was taken to the plant of the Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry company, manufacturers of the cylinder castings used in Oldsmobiles. There the car was inspected by the firm's supervision staff, who pronounced it in perfect running condition. Before leaving Muskegon foundry officials were driven up one of Muskegon's steep "test" hills with the car maintaining a pace of five miles an hour in high gear from start finish.

Automobile engineers estimate that the car has been given the equivalent of 10 years' ordinary driving.

Tires Kept Cleaner By Carrying in Front

Carrying the spare tires on the front ends of the running boards has its advantages over the customary way of carrying them on a rack in the rear. Spares carried in the latter position catch all the road dirt with the result that when you have need of them a cleaning job is in order. Usually this is one job too many when time is limited and changing a tire is laborious enough.

There are other advantages to carrying the tires amidships. For one thing it makes for better distribution of weight and prevents the jiggling about of the spares if you are carrying two of them on some makeshift arrangement in the rear. Often the elimination of the protruding rear spares enables you to park in a smaller space.

STATE POLITICAL SCENE SHIFTED

New Demo Leaders Take Up Active Duties

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
News Staff Writer

Political scene shifting extraordinary has happened in Texas. Thomas B. Love is no longer national committeeman. Colonel Jed Adams is his successor. Frank C. Davis is no longer state chairman. Judge E. A. Berry is his successor. There is a new state committee, one member from each senatorial district. All thirty-one members are in harmony with the new order of things.

Colonel Jed Adams is in New York. He found his place with the national committee without delay. Judge Berry and his committee will hold an important meeting in the city of Houston Monday, September 22. C. V. Terrell would like to be named as railroad commissioner. Sidney L. Staples would like to be named as state treasurer. Those on the inside say that Terrell and Staples will find themselves just outside of the breastworks after the committee has completed its business.

There are 18 applicants for the railway commissionership. William A. Nabors would like the post. He was defeated by Lon A. Smith for nomination for the position now held by Nabors. It is said that C. A. Hurddleston of Fort Worth is the choice of James A. Ferguson. It is also said that there will be a deadlock which may be broken by the selection of Former Governor Oscar B. Colquitt.

Colquitt is not an applicant but if tendered the nomination his friends say that he would be content to be drafted and to make the race. Colquitt made a fine reputation as a member of the commission in the long ago and used it as a stepping stone to the office of governor.

Chairman Berry was a backer of W. Elmer Pope when the Corpus Christi man made the race for the governorship went down in defeat. In the runoff Pope and Berry were very zealous supporters of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

According to the leaders the Houston conference on September 22 will be largely attended. A plan of campaign will be perfected, including the appointment of committees on finance and to assign speakers for the red hot days which are to come in October.

If Governor Colquitt is given the nomination for railway commissioner it is said he will make an active campaign and those who are close to him declare that he will make many speeches for Mrs. Ferguson and the other democratic nominees regardless of who is given the post on the railway commission.

Chairman Berry is said to be one of the best political campaigners in the state. He is very ambitions to make himself known and heard and he is going on the highways and byways to shell the woods and to tell the voters just why the republican nominees should be defeated in state and nation by overwhelming majorities.

Organized opposition to democratic nominees hasn't counted for a great deal since the old populistic days when the republicans and the populists lined up together and made life interesting for the democratic campaign managers and candidates for office.

It is announced that Jemes E. Ferguson will make an active campaign in October and that Barry Miller, Dan Moody, Joseph Weldon Bailey, General M. M. Crane, Judge Joseph E. Cockrell, Colonel Jed Adams and a host of others have tendered their services to the Berry committee or are willing to be drafted.

Taylor-Clinton Wedding On Wednesday to Feature Coming Week in Society

BY GRACE FOOTE
The News Social Editor

THAT Cupid hasn't been idle during the summer months is evidenced by the many beautiful weddings which are scheduled for the coming weeks, and many delightful announcement parties which fill the days.

Weddings—and rumors of weddings—attract the attention of society and as the month of September advances society is looking forward with interest those pretty affairs which are set for the latter part of the month. And charming indeed are the lovely bridges, luncheons, dinners and showers which precede each important date, and during the past week the younger set, especially, has been entertained with a continual round of these delightful affairs.

Perhaps the most outstanding event of the coming week is the wedding of Miss Frankie Mae Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Taylor of Franklin, Texas, and Mr. Walter Clinton of this city, which will be solemnized Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride-elect's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Glass, 1525 Procter street.

Rev. John Ridout, Jr., rector of St. George's Episcopal church, will read the impressive ceremony. The personnel of guests at the wedding will include intimate friends of the pretty bride-elect, several of whom will be from out-of-town.

Miss Taylor is an attractive young woman, who has been making her home in Port Arthur for the past three years with Mr. and Mrs. Glass. During this time she has endeared herself to a host of friends who are deeply interested in her marriage. She is a graduate of the Franklin High school and since her graduation from the Port Arthur College she has been employed in the office at the Gulf refinery.

Mr. Clinton was originally from Oklahoma but has been residing in Port Arthur several years. He is affiliated with the Electric Supply company.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. Clinton and his pretty bride will return to Port Arthur to make their home, Mr. Clinton having an attractively furnished home awaiting his bride.

The popularity of the charming bride-elect is attested by the many lovely pre-nuptial hospitalities which are filling the days preceding the wedding. Last week Mrs. J. W. Harle entertained with a gracious hospitality for Miss Taylor, and on Monday evening the Lady Slippers club, of which Miss Taylor is a popular member, showered her with many beautiful gifts at the usual club session. Other pleasing affairs included informal dinners at which both Miss Taylor and Mr. Clinton were honor guests.

ONE of the loveliest of these pre-nuptial affairs complimeting Miss Taylor was the beautifully appointed bridge yesterday afternoon with a surprise miscellaneous shower coming during the closing hours of the charming event. The pretty bridge had as hostesses Mrs. L. W. McBride and Mrs. J. W. Williams at the former's home, 1521 Procter street.

A gorgeous profusion of golden rod and black-eyed Susans were used with artistic effect throughout the reception suite, their lovely hues combining to make a charming color note, which was displayed in all details of the hospitality.

Six tables of players were assembled to honor Miss Taylor, the tables being appointed in a motif of pink and white to harmonize with the charming floral adornment. Dainty favors were awarded for high score and consolation, the pretty guest of honor being presented with a lovely gift as a special souvenir from her hostesses.

The delightful shower was presented Miss Taylor in a novel manner at the close of the games. Dainty little Miss Mildred Yates, in an adorable costume to represent Cupid, entered the room where the guests were assembled, rolling a prettily decorated cart, which she presented to Miss Taylor. Upon opening the attractive packages Mrs. Taylor found a number of beautiful Miscellaneous articles for her new home. A lovely refreshment course was served during the late hours of the afternoon.

The personnel of the gracious compliment in addition to Miss Taylor included Miss Folmina Vuylsteke, Mrs. J. E. Gibson, Mrs. W. W. Glass, Mrs. George Gulley, Mrs. J. W. Harle, Mrs. H. K. Goodwin, Miss May Alice Walker, Miss Cora Walker, Miss Marie LeMaster, Miss Rose Benz, Miss Ruth Corbett, Miss Isabel Davis, Mrs. C. E. Yates, Miss Doris Thompson, Mrs. H. D. Taylor, Mrs. John Vaught, Mrs. R. T. McMullen, Miss Delma Roper, Miss Edith Upton, Mrs. T. T. Fitzgerald, Miss Anna Williams, Miss Irene Williams and the hostesses; Mrs. J. W. Williams and Mrs. H. W. McBride.

Port Arthur Society Girls Attend Rush Week at University

OFF for school—

After a summer spent in pastimes from tennis right down the line to swimming, luncheons, dinners, tea parties and the three major pastimes of flirting, dancing and bridge—members of the younger set are off to the grind again. After all whether tennis or being hostess happens to be the game one is playing, the aim is to become agile, graceful, quick-witted and self-controlled. Last week the usual crowd and several additional ones returned to Texas University for rush week.

In some ways the students resented this manless rushing up there, but in some ways it was the best as so many of the co-eds have joined the ranks of wedded bliss that the girls felt it was better to keep those returning for rush week out of the way of temptation. When they are so young and so beautiful it's mighty hard not to flirt just a little bit, not to mention the fact that it's hard to refrain from whispering sweet nothings to them. But that was a thing of the past for there weren't any men at the sorority house during rush week. The authorities claimed that a word from a handsome male escort carried more weight than a whole room full of weeping sisters. So there was a shingle in front of every door, "No Men Allowed."

No, there weren't any Germans either, lest the sweet things be influenced by some male relative or friend. Even the telephones were muffled. So there were no means of communication between the reinforcements and the camps of the enemy. It was rather convenient to take your "stacombed" friend aside and whisper "Rush her—such and such," but after all, girls, it really doesn't pay to trust a man.

There was the general routine otherwise. There were breakfasts, luncheons and dinners interspersed with "Cat Parties" among the sisters when the rushees were supposed to have been asleep.

Among the charming members of the younger set who were at the University during rush week were Misses Louise Pfeiffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Pfeiffer of 1845 Procter street, and Mary Virginia Latimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Latimer of 2210 Fifth street, both of whom attended Ward-Belmont at Nashville, Tenn., last year.

Miss Louise Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Baker of 2105 Procter street, a member of Tri Delta, returned to University for rush week.

Others who will attend the University are Miss Erma Winn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Winn of 2145 Fifth street, who will be a junior this year, and Miss Miriam Barrier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Barrier of 2445 Procter street, who will study law this term. Miss Barrier received her A. B. degree this past summer.

Folks—Good Morning—
"With a Smile"

Just a Few Words Please on the Subject of

Changing Oil Stoves to Gas Stoves

The results being obtained by persons who have had their oil stoves converted into gas stoves are absolutely satisfactory.

A converted oil stove is a perfectly efficient cooking appliance.

A converted oil stove can be changed back to an oil burning stove in five minutes. If you move away from our gas mains take out the gas burners and put back the oil burner.

A converted oil stove does not smoke, there is no smell. The heat is instantaneous.

The cost of changing an oil stove to a gas stove is very reasonable.

When you "Just turn the gas valve" on that old oil stove, and instantly there is a red hot flame, and in thirteen minutes or less, from the time you light the flame you take a pan of out of the oven, and you have not made your kitchen uncomfortable for reason of shutting out the air so the draft won't blow your flame, you too can say

Mrs. C. E. Booz, Jr., Hostess To Lovely Shower Honoring Mrs. George R. Woodworth

MRS. GEORGE WOODWORTH, formerly Miss Dorothy Watkeys, whose marriage to Mr. Woodworth was a delightful surprise of late August, is being showered with a number of post-nuptial affairs, among them being a beautifully appointed shower which had as hostess Mrs. C. E. Booz, Jr., at her home, 2549 Lake Shore drive, the personnel of guests including intimate friends of the pretty bride.

A lovely motif of green and white was displayed in the adornment of the home with an exquisite array of gorgeous fall flowers everywhere evident about the handsome reception suite.

Hearts gave diversion during the evening, four tables of players enjoying the fascinating games. Heart table appointments reflected the green and white theme, and in the games the dainty favor for high score was awarded to Mrs. J. M. Minner and consolation fell to Miss Nora Bringol.

The lovely shower was presented Mrs. Woodworth at the close of the games when she was told she would find her prize at the end of the green and white streamers, which she must follow until she came to the end. At the end of the streamers she found a handsomely decorated basket, filled with numerous beautiful gifts. After the packages were opened and the gifts admired the hostess offered a dainty ice course.

The guest list included Mrs. Harry H. Holton, Mrs. Victor Miller of Beaumont, Mrs. Grady Odom, Mrs. R. Frazier, Mrs. F. H. Waite, Mrs. J. C. Bendixen, Mrs. J. M. Minner, Mrs. Gilbert Terry, Mrs. R. Delightful Reception By Epworth League

Thursday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church, corner Stilwell and Lake Shore drive, the Epworth league and the young people of the church entertained with a most delightful reception for the students of Port Arthur College and the nurses and student nurses of Mary Gates hospital.

The entire lower floor of the church was attractively decorated for the event and during the evening an entertaining program was given. The address of welcome was given by Rev. C. W. Rodgers and responses were made by President A. B. Chenier of the College and Miss E. Walker, superintendent of Mary Gates hospital.

The Young Peoples orchestra delighted the guests with several selections, and Miss Bessie Reece entertained with a beautiful violin number. Miss Marie LeMaster warbled for the entertainment of the guests, her warbling being enthusiastically received and encored. The program was concluded with a charming reading by Miss Beth Palmer.

A social and get-acquainted hour followed, and novel indeed were some of the stunts used to get the young people introduced. As one means of getting acquainted one of the young people became injured and was immediately taken care of by one of the nurses, and as soon as his injury was attended to, another became injured to get first aid but he was forced to go through his suffering without assistance.

Delicious punch and wafers were served from a prettily decorated punch table, and there was no trouble getting backward ones introduced to the punch.

The evening's entertainment closed promptly at 10 o'clock. The young people were enthusiastic over the success of their entertainment, feeling that new acquaintanceship had been begun that would not soon cease.

DAVIS ACCORDED BIG RECEPTION

Finds Friendly Attitude In Chicago Address

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—All doubt in the minds of democratic leaders as to the appeal John W. Davis would make to Chicago voters was swept away today and they assured the democratic standard bearer that he would carry Illinois.

With the din of bedlam set up last night by the stockyards crowd when Davis declared himself for the preservation of personal liberty still ringing in their ears, George Brennan, democratic boss of Illinois and his cohorts set to work to make good their promise.

Campaign Peak Reached

Davis reached the peak of his campaign form last night. Unhampered by notes, and with responsive cheers urging him on, he delivered the most rousing speech of his campaign.

He struck the keynote when he mentioned personal liberty in summing up what "100 per cent Americanism" meant to him.

Shouts of "we want beer; give us beer, Johnny," went up all over the great hall that held 12,000 people.

"I am glad to see that there is life in the old words yet," said Davis as he proceeded to expand his views of "freedom of religious worship and freedom from unlawful search and seizure."

No marks could be found indicative of a struggle and the only clue of identification was a laundry claim check found in the man's clothing made out to J. B. Watson.

THIRSTY POTATOES MIMIC CUCUMBERS

TOPPENISH, Wash., Sept. 20.—Scarcity of irrigation water in some of the high line districts has had a queer effect on potatoes. Patches here and there are yielding tubers about twice as long as usual and of a regular thickness, giving them the appearance of cucumbers.

The formation is caused by the pulling of roots' growth searching for moisture. Restaurants and hotels will eagerly bid for these spuds, say growers, for they are easily converted into popular French fries.

TAX REFORM PROGRAM 'O.K.'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—President Coolidge today gave his tacit approval to the program of tax reform proposed by the Cousens senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau.

Senator Cousens called upon the president to acquaint him with what the committee planned to do. After the conference Cousens said Mr. Coolidge "approved of the constructive aims of the committee."

LA FOLLETTE LEAVES TO DELIVER ADDRESS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, independent candidate, leaves for New York today to make the first general speech of his campaign at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The Wisconsin senator has spent a long time in seclusion preparing the speech and leaders of both old parties await it with interest.

BLOOD POISON CURE DYES THEIR FACES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—If you see a person walking on the street with a black, tan, purple or some other unusual facial color, he isn't trying to break into the movies, according to Dr. C. C. Berwick.

It's a plain dye now beginning to be used generously by physicians as a cure for blood poisoning, for which until a few months ago, the medical profession had no definite cure.

Coal tar dyes form the basis of the treatment, which came to the Pacific coast following successful experiments at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.

FRANK OUGHT TO GET DENTIST PRESCRIPTION

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 20.—Frank Montreal, Odanah, was suffering with a severe toothache. While walking up the street a friend asked him whether he wanted a drink. He didn't say no. Next morning he was brought before the judge after having been arrested on charges of disorderly conduct. The toothache was gone and he slept fine, he told the judge as he paid up.

CHINESE WAR TROUBLE REACHES WISCONSIN

BIRCHWOOD, Wis., Sep. 20.—The civil war in China has made itself felt in Birchwood and throughout this part of the state, where both white men and Indians gather ginseng for market. It is said the ginseng market has slumped greatly since the Chinese revolution. Many local men gather this wild plant and after curing it the plant is shipped to market and then sent to China, where certain medicines are made from it. In normal times, high prices are paid for ginseng.

PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

By W. E. HILL

Copyright 1924 by the Chicago Tribune

Mrs. Bertine Brown has been reading and reading in order to cast an intelligent vote. After two radical weeklies, a Republican daily and a Democratic ditto, she doesn't know what to do bout it. Would you?

"Something must be broken!" Great commotion over the Jenkins' home grown radio during a speech of acceptance. Ter minutes has been given over to cheering and wild applause but it doesn't sound like anything but cats on a fence over the Jenkins' radio.

"For heaven's sake, let's have a good looking man in the White House," is the silent plea of Bessie the stenog, who has her first vote this year.

Now is the open season for politicians who seek to charm reporters with these magic words: "I used to be a newspaper man myself."

Publicity stuff, showing a politician trying to look benign, for the newspaper camera, If he can look sort of wistful as well, why, all the better.

The breath of scandal. You can't believe everything you hear around election time! Here are two ladies who have heard the same bit of scandal about different candidates, and from the most trustworthy sources.

The pessimistic voter believes that whoever gets elected will be the wrong man, and Wall street will be at the bottom of it,

The political job hunter. Bigger and better rewards at Washington is his slogan,

NO. 2.
Three male voters. They are, (a) the radical voter, (b) the man who votes for the best man, if any; and (c), the voter who has voted under the party for more presidential years than he can recall

THE WHOLE STORY

By Princess Bibesco

She Wrote Her Life,
Instead of Living it—
Until Reality
Thrust Itself
Into Her Dreams

"IT is so like you to want to know the whole story."

"Please let me be like myself."

"And it is so like me to pamper you, isn't it?"

"Delightfully like you. I want you to begin at the beginning. How did you come to know her? No one has ever met a best seller. I have always felt it would be easier to get to know a person who had invented a vacuum cleaner than some one who sold 300,000 copies of a book—because, how does one set about it? The whole literary world stands between you. E. M. Forster would quite genuinely never have heard of her, and the rest of the intelligentsia would hardly be intelligent enough. To them she would be a giggle—an unconscious echo of their private schools. One might approach Arnold Bennett, of course, but his books sell too well. It would be the rubbing in of a resemblance and a difference, and he might not know that one knew which was which. Yes, clearly, it would have to be an accident. It was an accident, wasn't it?"

"A kind of accident."

"Of course, I know every time that I go to the country I am surrounded by rectories overflowing with serial writers—but how am I to find out?"

"Why don't you write, 'Care of the Daily Mirror,' 'Dear madam: My life has not been the same since I read "Clare's Calvary." Would it be possible for me to meet you? There are so many things I would like to talk to you about,' etc., etc."

"No, I couldn't do that—it wouldn't be decent."

"Dear me, you are like a New York friend of mine, who, when told that a young lady of his acquaintance was in love with Chaliapin, said: 'But it's impossible, her father was a member of the Racquet club.'"

"Margeret, you are prevaricating—please don't tease me, I want my Arabian Night."

"From Balham?"

"Was it Balham?"

"No, of course not—Godalming."

"Let me nail you down to the first fact. Miss Eunice Evans lives at Godalming."

"That is not the beginning. The beginning is, as you meant it to be, in a rectory."

"But how did you peep through the window?"

"Miss Evans, the eldest Miss Evans, Miss Ethel Evans, was my governess."

"Good heavens!"

"Not at all. My Miss Evans was everything that a governess should be. She wore her watch on a watch chain, tucked into her belt; she sketched a little in water colors; she played the piano, allowing her chords and arpeggios a communal life. She knew all about English Grammar, and she believed that everything was for the best. She lowered her voice in speaking about the dead, and raised it in speaking about the clergy. She was never without a shoe horn and a button hook. Her brush and comb were always in a bag, and so was her nightgown, which was called a night dress. She never traveled without eau de cologne encased in wicker work, and brandy concealed in a small scent bottle. These excesses were covered by the formula, 'One never knows.'"

"And Eunice?"

"Don't you want to know any more about Ethel?"

"I know all about Ethel. She adored you and she always said 'Margaret has a very hot temper, but it is quickly over. I can't bear a person who sulks—of course, she is a difficult child—so passionate—but a heart of gold!'"

"How do you know?"

"All governesses say that about their pupils."

"But I have got a heart of gold."

"Very possibly. And Miss Evans explained that what she really liked about you was your open nature. Those brown eyes, she would say, could harbor no deceit."

"She was quite right. Miss Evans was the niece of an archdeacon. It was long before archdeacons had had a word said against them. Eunice was her younger sister. Occasionally, when we were in London she would come and spend a night or two, and we would go to 'Julius Cæsar' and a promenade concert."

"Was it always 'Julius Cæsar'?"

"Once it was 'Raffles.' In winter we would have tea at Charbonnel and Walker—chocolate with whipped cream—and in summer, we would go to Gunter's and eat strawberry ices."

"Big ones?"

"Small ones, with a glass of iced water and a sponge cake."

"And Eunice, what did she look like? What did she talk about?"

"Her hair was a little fairer than hair colored. It was always loose with a net trying to keep up with it, a net that was either lamentably short, or else sprawling about her forehead. Her eyes were gray—they were bound to be gray, weren't they?—rather charming and surprised, with a nice foolish expression. She always thought it so wonderful to be in London, in the same town as the National gallery and the British museum, and so much wickedness."

"And the mother of parliaments?"

"Yes, and Park Lane. She felt that Park Lane was full of international financiers. She adored mother—mother was a dream then, you know—and she used to love to see her dressed for a ball with her jewels on. Miss Evans—Ethel—said that the expression of her eyes was the crowning jewel, but I don't think Eunice felt that. She said that there was something very gay about diamonds."

"Poor Miss Eunice."

"She is so rich now—so very rich."

"But how did it all begin?"

"I don't know—'Wax Flowers' it was called—her first book I mean. It was a tremendous success. The hero was suspected of cowardice, and he went out to India under another name and saved his rival's life—or was it his native servant's? Anyway, the heroine didn't believe in him for a long time—not for about 400 pages—but she became very humble at the end, calling him, I remember, her 'Sahib,' which is a term of respect, isn't it?"

"Don't be flippant Margeret—what happened then?"

"Well, she wrote one book after another. Her heroes became more and more manly—they took their beloveds to shacks and chained them up and told them they ought to be whipped—perhaps, they even whipped them—I don't remember. But the ladies, though unmarried, were as safe and sacred as they would have been in their own drawing rooms at Tooting, and when once they had learnt their lesson they were allowed to marry and dream of cradles. Later, much later, there was a new crop, pages and pages of unconsummated marriages, but that has been the last state."

"But Margeret, I want to know about Eunice herself."

"Well, Mr. Evans died and Ethel died, and Eunice took her house at Godalming. One couldn't see it at all from the road, she said, and one could get to the Hog's Back quite easily. There was the biggest monkey puzzle I have ever seen in the garden, and lilacs and laburnums and syringa, all looking so unflowery. There was a summer house, too—a rustic one and arches of Dorothy Perkins ramblers. And I remember a little bit of artificial water with a tiny water fall and some elaborate rocks peering about among maiden hair. 'Of course', Eunice said, 'I know there isn't really maiden hair in the wilds, but poor father always said that what is beautiful is true.'"

"And inside?"

"Inside? There was a pianola and a gramophone and lots of little tables covered with slums of little silver things. And the wall paper looked like moire. Everything looked like something else. The lamp shades were dolls, the tea cozy was a golliwog, the books were card boxes, the cigarets were marzipan, only in the hall there was a tiger skin with the tiger's head, and even he was considered by Eunice to look very much like a tiger."

"And did she like it?"

"Well, it was an achievement—a delegate of a house. It represented prosperity and space and the possibility of an unlimited overcrowding of objects"

"And her bedroom? Describe her bedroom to me."

"It was frilly. The pillow cases had frills and so had the sheets. The dressing table was a crinoline of white lace tied up with bows. There were photographs of her father, of Ethel, of the archdeacon, and an enchanting daguerreotype of her mother with a plaited bun and black velvet trimmings to her flounces. There was a full length oval looking glass which always tilted too much forward or too much back, and every drawer had a sachet in it."

"And didn't she travel?"

"Well, she was always thinking of going to Monte Carlo, but she felt that it would look so odd for a woman alone—and her friend, Mrs. Jenkins, who sketched so beautifully, always seemed to prefer Dieppe—so to Dieppe they went, and ate the sort of honey which is always out of a comb and lunched at half past twelve, because it was so important to be taken right out of one's self abroad. And some of Mrs. Jenkins pictures were sold at the church bazaar and everyone agreed that they looked so foreign."

"But you, Margaret, surely you of all people must have been able to find out what she thought about."

"She thought about others — at least she thought she did. She was always doing kind things and being fantastically generous — she enjoyed that—the surprise of the porter or the postman or the collecting nun."

"But did she have no life of her own?"

"Well, you see she wrote."

"But I mean——"

"She wrote her own life—it was, in a way, so much better than living it. She was able, you understand, to have red hair and long fingers and difficult over lapping love affairs. She could be first arrogant and then self-abasing. Eunice longed to abase herself, but there was no one but her neat parlor maid, and that wouldn't have done for the niece of an archdeacon. And then all of the paraphernalia of yachts and casinos and Simla garden parties—those were the settings in which she liked to move, and it was so much simpler on paper—after all, with the written page you can never be one mango short."

"But surely she must have wanted more?"

"Well, I suppose she felt it would inevitably resolve itself into being less."

"But didn't she want to be kissed?"

"Yes, I suppose so, but only against her will. She was determined, so pathetically, resolutely, determined, to be mastered. She told me that she thought it only natural for men to be rough—it didn't prevent them from being tender, too. But, of course, no one ever dreamt of being rough with Eunice—she was so kind and gentle and sympathetic. And then, she was a little short sighted—I always think it must be almost impossible for a short sighted person to inspire brutality."

"And so no one ever made love to her?"

"Well, a nice doctor wanted to marry her. She told me about it. She said, 'I ought to have felt myself to be a fortunate woman.' 'What did he say?' I asked. 'Well he put his two hands on my shoulders and said "Miss Eunice, I have the deepest respect and admiration for you—don't you think we might jog along pretty happily in double harness?" 'Poor Eunice,' I said, 'of course you couldn't' 'No,' she agreed eagerly, 'I couldn't could I? I said, "you see I'm not in love with you," and he answered easily "That doesn't matter—you mustn't imagine that we are characters in one of your books," and I couldn't explain to him. 'Of course,' she added, determined to be fair 'he is a widower.'"

"What a horrible story, Margeret."

"That was about the time that she wrote 'The Masquerade.' Don't you remember the scene at the end when Pearl slips out of her house in Grosvenor square, never to return? Out into the night she walked, under these same stars that somewhere were shining for him. In the heavy scented darkness of the east, a boatman was singing a love song. You could hear his oars splashing lazily, and the rising and falling of his cracked voice. And though the notes were broken, is not the song of love the same the world over? To Gerald sitting with his head in his hands, it seemed that another voice was singing, and through the vast silence he could hear a whisper—'I am coming, beloved—'"

"Poor Eunice."

"I think she was very depressed at that time. Reality had bumped its head into her dreams. Presumably the doctor had been a man, and what he had offered her must be a sort of love. It took her quite a long time to clear her mind of these discouraging thoughts and reënter her own world. For quite a long time zest had gone out of the flashing heroine, as she stooped humbly to kiss the man of action's hand—"

"And she stayed in Godalming?"

"Yes. There was a semi-circular gravel drive, and opposite the front door there were two flower beds forming the monogram 'E. E.' in begonias. In winter the same design was carried out in white pebbles. 'It is nice for one's two names to begin with the same letter,' she told me a little wistfully. 'Yes,' I said, 'and you will be able to have that even when you are married. Fame has entitled you to them forever.' She brightened a little—'I don't think I shall ever marry,' she murmured. 'I want so much.' And it was true—there were no compromises for Eunice. She could order the meals and go to church and help with the school treat and attend the vicerage sewing circle, but none of those things were real to her. Her real life was altogether different. Quite easily the church became a dim mediæval chapel, the monkey puzzle stretched into a spreading cedar, and Mrs. Jenkins herself, brisk and managing and vital, would be transformed alternately into a warm hearted eccentric duchess or a venomous worldly aunt.

"You see now why Eunice stayed at Godalming—why she didn't buy a country house—why she had no Rolls Royce. Knole would have been of no good to her because it was not also the Villa d'Este and Chenonceau—and the motor would have needed to be a coach and a camel and a victoria. With human beings it was the same thing. The pope himself would have been useless to Eunice because he wasn't all the other popes. If you are a Doria, what a pity not to be a Borgia or a Medici—how disappointing for Alexander not to have been Caesar and Napoleon as well. Once you have personality, is not every limitation an insult, even if you be limited by the future or the past?"

"Margaret, you are giving too much philosophy to Eunice."

"No, I am only giving you a rather overlogical description of Eunice's subconscious attitude towards life. You see, she never wanted the undramatic—that was what made her books and that was what made her life. There were to be no gray, psychological moments whatever with reality clicking like the new fastening of a bracelet. That was the doctor's crime—he had behaved as if they were leading ordinary lives, and, of course, Eunice wasn't—'Wax Flowers' was real. 'Clare's Calvary' was real, but not the monkey puzzle, not the photograph of the archdeacon."

"And so she had no personal relations?"

"She had what is called a 'host of friends,' only they were outside her life—as outside as a switchback or a game of croquet. We are all such muddles compared to Eunice. We try to mix the world of our thoughts and dreams with the world of our acts and habits, and so we inflate our relationships with illusions and prick our visions with realism, and all the time we are being tugged at by frustrated fulfillment."

"You humbug, Margaret—you with your coat of many colors."

"You see, we all lack courage. I inject a hope into every disappointment—I safeguard each dream with a doubt. Eunice wasn't like that. She didn't try to make her house beautiful because it wasn't necessary, she didn't live in it. When she had first bought it it had been a toy, but the monogram and the tiger and the maiden hair represented her last compromises with fate. There were no more subterfuges. After that she lived entirely in marble palaces and shacks and tents. She even gave up writing on pink note paper."

"And her clothes? Didn't she care about her clothes?"

"No, I don't think so. She didn't so much dress for dinner as change for dinner—it was a matter of a fichu instead of a collar, short sleeves instead of long ones. You see, she was really approaching a roulette table, very décolleté—in a hat, with an ermine wrap dripping from her shoulders and a long jade cigaret holder in her mouth—for it was only after the entry of Howard upon the scene that the disastrous collision occurred."

"Howard?"

"O, I forgot that you didn't know about Howard. Howard is the story. I wonder if he is worthy of being it; perhaps he is. I, myself, always find it so difficult to believe in Howard—he seems so unnaturally like a feminist idea of a man——"

"In what way?"

"You mustn't be impatient—Howard has got to be uncoiled like a snake—nothing would induce me to show you the whole of him at once. And then, there are so many Howards. There is Howard as Eunice saw him, Howard as Eunice sees him, Howard as I see him, Howard as he sees himself. Then, there is the Godalming house as Howard saw it, and Eunice as Howard saw her. You see, it was all misleading even for him."

"Mayn't I see the head of the snake?"

"Howard is—these are undeniable facts—6 foot 2, large, heavy, with a mustache which would successfully gobble up a smaller man. His eyes are like large melting chocolates—they can only melt, they have no other function—you always feel as if they were going to drip. He came to Godalming from East Africa, bathed in the glamor of big game. Actually, I think he had been sent there in the optimistic spirit which makes so many families regard the colonies as professions in themselves.

"The first time I saw him he was having tea with Eunice. I will say this for him, he certainly did dwarf the drawing room. Even the tea service looked like a doll's tea service. I remember thinking at the time that he was as much out of place in that room as one of Eunice's day dreams. But, of course, I was wrong—just as wrong as she was——"

"Did she——"

"You are trying to hustle me." He sat there saying nothing at all. At least he said: "I'm not much of a tea drinker,' 'and when Eunice pressed a whisky and soda on him he accepted with the words, "Everything in moderation, especially water." Eunice murmured, "I suppose in the tropics, I mean in the wilds——" and then she broke off nervously with, "Mr. Carruthers is a great traveler, Margaret, dear." "How delightful," I said, hoping that it didn't sound too discouraging. "'Ever been to Africa?'" he asked. 'No.' 'Ever been to British East Africa?' 'No.' 'Pity.'

"And that was that—Eunice begged him to tell us about his adventures, but he merely muttered, 'Never been much of a talker.' Personal pronouns played practically no part in his vocabulary. That was the beginning. After that, everything was as swift and relentless as a Greek tragedy. Howard was broke, Eunice was rich, I was helpless—And there were things, one had reluctantly to admit it, that Howard understood. Women, for instance, in a facetious music hall sense of the word. And he studied Eunice as no cat ever studied a mouse. He had, I can't deny it, a sort of low cunning. At first, he said things like 'a lady's privilege' each time Eunice changed her mind—but, later, he veered round to a line of rather coarse brutal directness. Women, he asserted, were the playthings of man's pleasure. He talked about Shanghai—Eunice trembled a little. 'The nonsense men put up with nowadays makes me sick,' he would say—'A man should be master in his own house—if his women folk don't obey him, he should give them a good spanking.'"

But he must have been quite dreadful."

"He was dreadful—but Eunice was thrilled. 'Dogs adore him,' she would explain a little apologetically.

"And then, of course, he proposed."

"'I'm not much of a hand at talking,' he said, 'but I think you can guess,' and he took her in his arms. 'He has loved me all the time,' she explained, 'only he didn't dare admit it to himself—you see he is poor, and he did so hate the thought of my having money.' 'Naturally,' I said. 'You will help me with my clothes,' she begged tremulously.

"Now you have your scene set. You know Eunice and you know Howard. You know what Eunice thinks of Howard, this mixture of God and brute. 'Women have never meant much to him,' she told me. 'He says he doesn't know what to talk to them about. Of course, one doesn't see them much in the wilds, not nice ones, I mean,' and she blushed a little as she thought of the 'Playthings of pleasure'—perhaps she even thought a little wistfully that it would be nice to be a plaything."

"But, Margaret, I don't know what Howard thought of Eunice."

"That was what I was coming to. He hadn't thought of Eunice."

"That is what I was coming to. He hadn't thought about her much. She was, he knew, rich and he liked motors and cigars. Beggars couldn't be choosers, and even if she did pay the piper, she wasn't likely to call much of a tune. She was a nice little thing—rather quiet, without much to say for herself, and, by golly, it wasn't every one who could make pots of money simply by sitting down and writing. Of course, she wasn't young or pretty, but one couldn't expect everything, and, my hat, wasn't she gone on him."

"Good God, Margaret, did he really talk like that?"

"Of course, he did—and you see he knew nothing, absolutely nothing. How was he to guess about the marble palaces? The house at Godalming was a nice, comfortable place. The garden was pretty, too, and he would buy a billiard table.

"From the day she became engaged Eunice was to those who didn't know her, transformed—actually, of course, she was simply turning herself inside out. Her exterior Godalming life ceased to exist. She insisted on going to Paris, on buying furs and clothes, and jewels. In the evenings she would try them on in a vast cage of looking glasses. 'How do you think one wraps oneself into this ermine cloak, dear,' she would ask. 'If I hold it negligently as the mannequin did, it drops off, and yet clutching it doesn't look right at all.'"

"All of these difficulties have been so easily surmounted by Clare and by Pearl. They had simply not arisen. 'I suppose it is all a matter of practice,' Eunice consoled herself. But, sometimes she got very depressed. She would remember all of the descriptions of her various heroines—and yet, none of them seemed to fit. Where was the languid haughty assurance of Clare, where the wistful flowerlike loveliness of Pearl? Eunice did so long to be quite at home with cigaret holders and vanity cases. 'I know Margaret dear, you never powder in a restaurant—you don't like the looks of it in public—but aren't you just a little bit old-fashioned? One ought to be able to, oughtn't one?'"

"I have never spent a more miserable ten days in my life—never before did I know what the word poignant really meant. Eunice was heart rending—elated at one moment, desperate the next, beginning each day eager and hopeful, and ending it tired and discouraged. 'I think some of my things will turn out well,' she would say tremulously, but I have never in my life seen any one who succeeded to the extent that she did in looking as if her clothes were cutting her. There never seemed to be any sort of relation between her and what she was wearing. 'Howard loved you so much just as you were,' I would say to her—'You mustn't go home too different.' Of course, I know it is me myself that he loves,' she would agree smiling happily. 'He would love me in rags—indeed, I know he wishes I were poor so that he should be able to work hard for me. But I think one ought never to forget that it is a wife's duty to be the plaything of her husband's pleasure.' So it had come to that—I was appalled. Her life really was to be led in the grand manner of 'Wax Flowers' and 'Clare's Calvary.'"

"'Do you think one has the right to refuse oneself to one's husband?' she asked me one day. 'I think perhaps one has, but, of course, I wouldn't be a bit surprised at his insisting.' It was curious the way that Eunice hungered for force."

"And when you got back from Paris?"

"We were met at the station by Howard and the new motor car that she had ordered as a present for him. He really was impressed: 'By Jove, she's a beauty," he said and then pulling himself together, 'But I can't accept it, little one, it's bad enough not being able to give you things.' 'You are making me a present by taking it,' she said. There was a look almost of love in his eyes. He kissed her rather noisily. 'Sorry,' he said to me, 'I've always got what I wanted in life, and do you know how it's done? First, you must want a thing, and then you must take it. Your lips are my property now, little girl, and I shall prove it to you just as often as I want to.' She looked at him with adoring eyes—'But you're so strong Howard, you won't take advantage of your strength, will you?' I saw the cunning look in his eyes as he responded to her hopes—'You are going to belong to me,' he said roughly, 'and I shan't let you forget it.'

"I am afraid you think that Howard is rather brutal,' she said to me one day. 'You see, he has never really been in love before—I sometimes think it is more overpowering when it comes to people late. Of course, I don't mean that he hasn't had lots of affairs with women,' she added with pride. (He had evidently changed his route a little) but he took them quite coolly in his stride. 'This is the first time, he told me, that he has ever felt not quite master of himself. And, of course, he is rather primitive—I always feel he is so cramped by towns and houses, and even,' she blushed a little, 'by clothes.'

"Eunice wanted to be married at midnight, but she gave way to Howard, who pointed out that the vicar would be so much surprised, and so would Mrs. Jenkins, and what would his married sister and her husband, and his married brother and his wife, think? After all, being an authoress and all that, one had to be, if anything, more careful than other people.

"Eunice was thinking a great deal about houses—she liked the thought of Tudor with a courtyard, and, yet, how lovely the gold, gray stone of Somerset and Dorset was! After our visit to Paris nothing surprised me.

"Ultimately, she found an exquisite Queen Anne Manor house, with quite perfect proportions and a mellow, serene dignity, which reminded you of a late summer afternoon. She had it furnished by a decorator. 'Later,' she said, 'we will pick things up, things that will make it more personal, but I didn't like to trust myself with the foundations, I am so inexperienced.'

"The house was in such perfect taste that it was undeniably a little depressing. Even the most daring touches ('We quite understand that Miss Evans wishes for something individual') attained the impersonal quality that vicarious risks always manage to assume. 'It will be much friendlier,' I said, 'when things get littered about in it, embroidery silks and sealing wax and books.' 'And Howard's pipes' Eunice added in a low ecstatic voice.

"Eunice really didn't like women much and the men she had known had failed in any way to correspond with man as she imagined him to be. The archdeacon, of course, had been an uncle, the vicar a clergyman, and the doctor a widower, but even had they not suffered from these disabilities, it was useless to deny that they would still not have been very like Jasper in 'Wax Flowers' or Cyprian in 'Clare's Calvary.' Howard, of course, was quite different. Howard was a man—'a man's man, dear,' she would explain with pride. " 'Don't imagine I am going to spend my time kicking my heels in your drawing room," he said to me—" besides, I've got to work—you don't expect me to live on my wife's income, do you?' ".

"But I couldn't tell Eunice any of the things that I expected. How could I? Her adventure was out of my hands. I could only soil it with advice and doubts and precautions, and, possibly, embitter the final crash with silent 'I told you so's,' so I decided to take the other line, to pander to her every whim. Even an unhappy marriage is entitled to its orange blossom, its white satin, and its high forlorn hopes. Mrs. Jenkins thought Eunice should be married in a hat, but then, it is possible that Mrs. Jenkins thought that Eunice was going to be happy.

"A registry office, an old coat and skirt—what other equipment do you need when you start out flooded with ecstasy, trying, in vain, to plant a doubt—for luck—into your secret certainties?

"But I who knew that Eunice's romance could only last just as long as she was able not to realize Howard, I arranged that the church should be drenched in flowers and swollen with music, that a double choir should be triumphantly choral and a single soloist triumphantly pathetic (yes, she did sing, 'O, for the Wings, for the Wings of a Dove.') I over-rode Mrs. Jenkins and chose the stiff white satin, the silver brocade train, the vast bouquet of lilies of the valley. I pinned on the tulle veil which covered the whole figure in a mist of folds. I gave her a blue garter and clasped the pearls around her neck. After all, when she walked down the aisle on the arm of the archdeacon, she looked 'a bride'—what bride can want to do more?—and with her veil thrown back and Mendelssohn convincing one that the whole thing was quite legal, she looked so radiant that I think even Howard himself must have felt either a little glad or a little guilty."

"And was the wedding reception in the Godalming house?"

"Yes—that was the last time they were there. 'I have been very happy here,' Eunice said while she was changing into her going away dress, 'but now it seems as if it had been a sort of preparation for happiness, a kind of dedication.' She looked out of the window. 'The pergola really is very pretty,' she said, 'and I have always thought the maiden hair looked rather nice among the rocks.' With her dream opening, with reality gleaming ahead of her, she could afford to enter her house, the house that she had practically never inhabited. 'You never did very much like the begonias, did you Margaret, dear? I confess I was proud of them, but I expect you were right, and, of course, the house would never have done for Howard.'

"She lingered a little sadly, I thought, in the bedroom where she had dreamt so many dreams. Then, we heard Howard calling, 'where's my wife?' and Eunice hurried downstairs, but, just as she was getting into her motor, she ran back—'Margaret,' she said, 'the tiger skin—do you think that the tiger skin would look right in the manor house?' 'Of course,' I reassured her. 'I am so glad,' she murmured, 'it will feel so nice seeing it again.'"

"And that was the beginning of the end?"

"Well, in a way. They went to the Italian lakes and motored about—that was all right, I think. Eunice adored Howard, and Howard adored nothing. It wasn't until they came back that things began to go wrong. You have gathered, at least I hope I have made it clear, that Eunice was an absolutist, a romantic and idealist—call it what you will—she had never compromised. She didn't know how to. When they got back to Rosecomb (that was the name of the manor house) Howard didn't like it. He didn't say so in so many words, but he allowed her to gather that he didn't think the house very cozy.

She looked so radiant that Howard himself must have felt either a little glad or a little guilty.

WOULD QUASH JIM'S BLEMISH

Special Legislature May Revoke Impeachment

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—In the event Gov. Pat M. Neff leaves the state to participate in a speaking campaign in the interest of John W. Davis' candidacy for president, a petition will be submitted to Lieut. Gov. T. W. Davidson, who will be acting governor in Neff's absence asking that the thirty-eighth legislature be called into extraordinary session. The purpose of the special session being to remove the disabilities imposed upon former Gov. James E. Ferguson by a former legislature.

State Representative W. C. Morgan of Liberty county has been here for several days conferring with state officials relative to the feasibility of laying the matter before the governor. He has been discouraged by some and from others he has been urged to continue his course.

Those offering discouragement assert that the only and proper way to remove the disabilities would be to hold a regular session of the legislature and submit an amendment to the people.

"Without precedent and in view of unsettled political conditions we cannot expect the governor to entertain our petition," Representative Morgan said, "unless widespread demand is felt. My information is that more than two-thirds of the lower house of the legislature will join in the petition to the governor and in a memorial to the senate, asking such action there and not leaving them for the thirty-ninth legislature to pass upon when Ferguson will, to all purposes, be a part of the state government."

The matter of petitioning the governor for a special session with this object in view will be delayed until a more thorough investigation of legal authorities may be had, Representative Morgan announced.

THE WHOLE STORY

"And had she considered the fact that there was no really first class golf links in the neighborhood?

"No, she had not considered it.

"It had seemed such a lovely house (the agent had said that it was a gem of the period known to every lover of architecture) and near enough to London for him to go up to work.

"You must understand that it was not that Eunice wanted Howard to work, she couldn't at that time, beat him out of her sight, only she knew the Howard that she loved wouldn't be able to bear a life of idleness, and, therefore, the Howard she loved must want to work.

"Howard said he must look about for something congenial to do. Naturally, he wasn't the man to loaf about, kept in luxury by his wife's money. Eunice said she knew exactly how he felt about her money, but she proposed to make a settlement on him which would make him entirely independent of her—which she did."

"That really was the end, I suppose?"

"No, it wasn't as simple as all that. Howard, of course, was a bounder and a kind of cad, but he was much too lazy to be vicious. The most he ever wanted to do was, as he put it himself, 'occasionally to make a night of it.' Sometimes he would get a little drunk, but only a little, just enough to make his voice a little thick and his eyes a little blurred. He liked his hearth and his home, his cigar and his doze in front of the fire. He wished no one any harm. When he wanted a thing, he was capable of an astonishing amount of cunning—when he got it, he relapsed into quiescence. If anything was short of his expectations he was aggrieved, but if anything was in excess of them he was still more so.

" 'The Godalming house was quite good enough for me,' he kept grumbling and as what was good enough for him was clearly absolutely good, everything else was irrelevance and an irritant. It was on these grounds that he so particularly disliked Eunice's beautiful red lacquer cabinet. It attracted his attention, and if there was one thing that Howard disliked more than another, it was having his attention attracted. 'Anything for a quiet life,' he would say, and the anything meant nothing. Nothing beautiful, nothing exceptional, nothing that could call for a moment or disturb the serene and desirable course of the absolute ordinary."

"And Eunice?"

"I was warding it off. Later, when everything had to come to an end she confided to me what had been her first flash of realization. I knew I was being wicked, but I couldn't help it. I wanted to feel that absolute surrender, which only comes when one has been physically mastered. I was so proud and so happy then to belong to Howard, and I was passionately in love with him. Only, I was haunted by the thought that I had given myself so willingly, so almost greedily—a man must surely want to have some resistance to overcome. So, one night when he came into my room, I said 'Not tonight Howard, please not tonight, I am so tired.' He didn't even come up to my bed. He just said, 'O, all right,' and walked away into his dressing room. His voice sounded quite indifferent, but I thought he must be hurt, that he was steeling himself. So I crept into his room—he was snoring quite peacefully. I woke him up, 'Howard,' I said, 'I haven't wounded you, have I?' 'I don't know what you are talking about, he said, 'For God's sake let me go to sleep,' and he turned over and was asleep in a minute. 'You see,' she went on pathetically, 'if he had believed that I was tired or not feeling well, he ought to have been concerned, but he just seemed indifferent and a little relieved at being spared all the bother of being loving."

"Poor Eunice—her brute was not only a brute, but he was hardly a man—just a lazy, self-indulgent creature with barely enough personality to be called an egoist, with just enough sense of self-preservation to be cunning when it was necessary, and not enough self-respect to honor his pledges.

"And yet, how hard Eunice fought for her illusions. I have told you the end so quickly. It took ever such a long time, really. For months she put her imagination between them, struggling in vain to hide from herself the daily spectacle of Howard as he really was. For months her passion—and she was in love with him—enabled her to overlook him, to recreate him in the image of her love. But she was worn out, worn out by his content, his unconsciousness that there was anything the matter.

"And did you ever speak to him?"

"Yes, I tried to make him see it. I said, 'Surely you remember all the things you pretended to be when you were engaged?' 'But,' he argued, 'one can't go on pretending forever.' 'Then they were false pretences?' 'So was the house at Godalming.' (Howard's cunning was reasserting itself.) 'Well,' he said, 'If I did all the manly business to impress her, didn't she buy this confounded house to impress me?' 'No,' I said, 'a thousand times no.' 'Then what did she buy it for?' 'For herself and you—for your happiness.' 'She was perfectly happy at Godalming.' 'Till you came along, and romance.' 'Well, she's got a husband—what more does a woman want?

"You see, it was hopeless—Howard had never seen one of Eunice's dreams. He had realized in a sort of coarse way that she longed to be swept off her feet, that she wanted to be mastered. But, that was all—he knew nothing of the life she had led before she met him, of the marble palaces, and the Simla garden parties. She had just been a maiden living at Godalming, surrounded by knick-knacks—a nice safe investment with a monkey puzzle and an arbor."

"Perhaps we are unreasonable to blame him—perhaps, after all, he showed more of his character than she did—poor Eunice, the gay deceiver."

"Eunice, the creator, Eunice, the dreamer. She is not even a best seller any more—a worm of life has got into her books, a horrible, dry rot of reality.

"She has a villa on the Rivera now, you know. But the other day she wrote to me 'The Cote d'Azur is charming in its way—but it's not all one thinks."

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 20.—Harvey Selhaver, shell shocked war veteran, entered into a suicide pact with 15-year-old Elizabeth Johnson, but after killing her, lost his nerve and fled, is the belief of police.

A letter from Selhaver to the girl written two days before she was discharged by his sweetheart's father on whose farm he was employed, hinted at a suicide pact which evidently had been suggested by the girl.

"The Only Way Out"

The torn fragments of the letter were found near the spot where the murdered girl's body was found.

Painless Dentist Under Ban at Nation's Capital

Board Finds There Never Was a Dentist Operating In Washington, So They Are Tabooed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The national capital has been rid of "painless" dentists.

Believing that there never were such persons, the local board of dental examiners has just concluded the job of causing all "painless" and signs of like character to be eliminated.

Under the dental law passed by congress at its last session, Dr. C. Willarfd Camalier, secretary-treasurer of the board and enforcement officer, is responsible for the downfall of "painless" dentists.

Dr. Camalier believes the new law has not only dealt a death blow to "painless" dentists but also has put a stop to dentists practicing under names or under company, association or trade names.

"Quite a few persons who were operating illegally under the old law have been forced to give up their work," said Dr. Camalier. "The board believes that many others will be uncovered as soon as its wheels have been more thoroughly set into motion.

"The new law," Dr. Camalier explained, "does not prevent advertising, except that which may tend to mislead or defraud the public, and before the law was passed many advertisements appeared bearing the names of dentists who had no existence and with statements which could be hardly substantiated."

Offices found by Dr. Camalier to have been owned or operated by unregistered men have been either closed or sold to licnsed practioners.

A provision in the new law which provides that only dentists who have been graduated from schools approved by the board shall be permitted to take the examination to practice will preclude the possibility of dentists with fake diplomas operating here, according to Dr. Camalier.

"It also prevents graduates of low grade colleges from being examined," Dr. Camalier said. It is impossible now for an unqualified dental practitioner to obtain a foothold in this city."

The first registration of dentists and oral hygeinists begins next December. This will be the first time that a record has been kept on every dentist operating here.

DAVIS USING WILSON POLICY

Speaks to 2,000 Women at Des Moines

ON BOARD DAVIS SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Since crossing the Mississippi, John W. Davis, democratic standard bearer, has espoused Woodrow Wilson's policies one by one, until today as he turns eastward, he stands for the same principles that won for Wilson in the west in 1916.

Before an audience of 2,000 women at Des Moines, Davis committed himself irrevocably to the league of nations and eulogized Wilson in a burst of dramatic oratory that left his hearers with tears streaming down their faces.

ARMY AVIATORS IN ST. JOSEPH

Next Halt Will Be Made In Oklahoma

ROSECRANS FLYING FIELD, ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 20.—The army round the world flyers landed here at 12:29 p. m. The planes left Omaha at 10:36 a. m. After a brief stop here the flyers planned to hop off for Muskogee, Okla., this afternoon.

Lieutenant Lowell Smith, flight commander, was the first to land followed by Lieutenants Wade and Nelson and the four escort planes.

Lieutenant Smith was presented a telegram of congratulations sent by Everett Hill, Oklahoma City, president of the International Rotary Club.

LOWLY SNAIL GETS TAX REDEMPTION

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Slowly the lowly snail has crawled his weary way through parliamentary procedure. Four cabinet ministers examined him carefully and submitted reports about him before he reached the desk of M. Doumergue. The president of the republic, with a flourish of the pen and a smack of his lips, gave him his freedom. The "Journal Official" has published the following:

"The President of the French Republic,

"In accordance with Article 31 of the law of December 17, 1814;

"In accordance with the decree of April 7, 1924, carrying the establishment of tax on certain merchandise.

"And on the report of the president of the council (premier) the minister of foreign affairs, the minister of commerce and industry, the minister of agriculture and the minister of finances:

"Be it decreed:

"Art. 1st. —The repeal where it concerns snails of this tax of 10 per cent ad valorem;

"Art. 2nd.—The president of the council, minister of foreign affairs, minister of commerce and industry, minister of agriculture and minister of finance are charged, where it concerns him, with the execution of this decree."

Then follows signatures and seals. All quite appropriate, for the lowly snail, of "L'escargot," makes up a tasty dinner dish, widely loved in France.

Find Ether Cocktail Popular Paris Drink

Mix "Sleep Powder" With Champaigne; Night Life Follows Fashion's Latest Decree to Limit

PARIS, Sept. 20.—"Ether cocktails," a mixture of a teaspoonful of ether in a glass of champagne, have become so popular with drug users in Paris night life that French physicians propose to ask a revision of the laws to limit the sale of ether. They say this new evil is spreading rapidly in France, as well as in Italy and the United States. The noted professor, Jules Amar, is one of the leaders of the movement to make the purchase of ether as difficult as that of cocaine.

Strict allied supervision of German chemical factories in the Rhineland and a relentless suppression of drug smuggling by both Belgium and France, have practically beaten the "cocaine offensive." This was inspired by a lust for easy money, and carried on by unprincipaled dealers, most of whom, according to the Germans, were Polish Jews in connivance with individuals of the allied armies and workers of the chemical factories who had access to the drug. German officials and factory heads cordially assisted in the campaign to wipe out the smuggling, with the result that cocaine is much more difficult to obtain here.

Drug users turned elsewhere for their stimulants. They tried heroin and products made from ammonia, but many have discovered of late that ordinary ether, sipped slowly, will give a sensation of exhilaration similar to that produced by forbidden drugs. Ether is now more in demand than the "Montmarte snow." In the post-midnight dancing places where women of all classes of society seek diversion, small flasks of ether are offered by daring peddlers as tonics for tired muscles and strained nerves. Even with big profits, the drug is cheap. It can be taken delicately, the "ether cocktail" can be mixed at the table while the dancing goes merrily on. The doctors say that habitual users reach the stage where they can drain a half-pint flask of ether during an evening.

At an early session of parliament a demand will be made for a revision of the laws to prohibit the sale of ether except in small quantities and then only on prescription signed by a reputable physician. Advocates of this decree point out that now ether may be purchased as easily as a quart of gasoline.

ROYALTY NOT ABOVE CITY TRAFFIC RULES

LONDON, Sept. 20.—London is laughing and police headquarters is puffing out its chest because a London bobby the other evening held up the motor car of the queen of Spain, quite peremptorily, too, because of some trifling infraction of the traffic rules by her chauffeur. The chauffeur was horribly shocked.

But the Spanish queen was not. She told the bobby he had done quite right and later his superiors at Scotland Yard also commended him.

In the same traffic tangle the chauffeur of Lord Savile offended the same constable and was promptly summonsed. Again the master of the chauffeur approved the summons and again police headquarters stolidly applauded it. Lord Savile's chauffeur was fined $5.

HAMSHIRE FIG LANDS

are selling so fast to parties from Beaumont and Port Arthur and farmers from Central Texas, that several disappointments have occurred lately, because others were quicker to make up their mind and secured desirable pieces of this very cheap and excellent fig land. This is a warning to those who are too slow, to decide when they find a tract they want, because we cannot reserve any land without a substantial deposit.

Nowhere in the Gulf Coast can you secure any better fig land for lower prices and on more reasonable terms. Consider the prices asked by others, then think that you can still buy the sweetened, well drained, alkali free, Hamshire fig land for only $50.00 to $60.00 per acre, as long as the supply lasts, but it is getting less and less every day and when all is sold what we now offer, where will you get such an opportunity again?

The Mohammedans all look toward Mecca as the place to worship because their founder of their religion lived and died there.

The Fig enthusiast of Jefferson County looks toward HAMSHIRE and they all visit and inspect the Hamshire District of their county, because there they can see with their own eyes what has been done in Magnolia fig raising. They can see three and four year old heavy bearing orchards and orchards planted in the spring of 1923 and 1924, which show a luxurious growth of well developed trees on properly prepared land, well drained and well attended to during this spring, summer and fall season. They can ask as many questions as they want of actual successful fig orchardists.

Nowhere else in Jefferson County can such positive proofs for a successful fig industry be obtained. Not everywhere in this county can figs be grown so sure and so successfully as in the Hamshire District.

The man who buys elsewhere for the same price or for a much higher price is taking a big chance. He must take other people's word for it that he can grow figs successfully or will get a nice ready made orchard after a few years, but he gets no proof with the pudding. He takes a big risk, in fact he gambles.

For further information, illustrated booklets, testimonials of satisfied growers, etc., address the originators of the fig industry in the Hamshire District of Texas, and owners of large acreage there.

AGGIE SCHOOL READY TO WORK

Many Additions to College Work, Buildings

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Sept. 20.—The A. & M. College of Texas has been put into order for repopulation by students and everything is in readiness for a start on full schedule. New faculty members have all reported for their duties and been assigned. Classroom refinishing, installation of new equipment, cleaning and repairing of dormitories, remodeling of buildings and all other repair and construction work has been pushed vigorously the past two weeks in order that there may be no hindrance to give confusion when the new students arrive.

The gymnasium which is now under construction and which will be opened for use about January 1, is the only large construction project undertaken by the college this past year to extend the facilities for teaching students, but the completion of the new extension service administration building has released the building formerly occupied by this extra mural department and made it available to three departments in the teaching division of the institution which will greatly facilitate instruction by these departments. The departments of biology, entomology and geology will occupy new quarters. Space made vacant by the removal of the biology department from the Main Academic building has given room there for an extension of the registrar's office and also room for the office of the dean of the school of arts and sciences, which has been created since the close of the last term of school.

FIERY FIGHTER IN FORM ANEW

La Follette Scores Opponents In Gotham Talk

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—With Senator Robert M. LaFollette in personal action, the independent presidential candidacy was in real action today.

It was the great stumper of 1920 who addressed the huge gathering in Madison Square Garden last night. His denunciation of the "orgy of corruption" in Washington; his prediction that the people will rise as the labor party of England did and assume control of the government, and his denunciation of the supreme court for nullifying important legislation, bespoke the LaFollette of many campaigns.

In fiery denunciation of the two major parties to which he referred simply as "our opponents," LaFollette defended his plan for congressional review of supreme court decisions affecting the constitutionality of federal laws; discussed the Washington investigations and "corruption in 'government" and called attention to the victories of the labor party in Great Britain.

MEMORIAL FOR 39 MINE DEAD

Hold Service On Plot Used For 99 Others

KEMMERER, Wyo., Sept. 20.—A memorial service will be held here Sunday for the 39 miners killed in an explosion which wrecked Sublet mine No. 5 of the Kemmerer Coal company Monday.

The memorial service will be held on the same ground where a saddened community gathered 13 months ago to mourn the loss of 99 men trapped in an explosion in Frontier mine No. 1 of the same company.

Of the 39 killed in Sublet mine, 23 were married and 23 children were left fatherless.

BAKER IS KILLED IN ODD ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Pinned at the throat by the edge of a heavy metal bread tray to the electric elevator in which he was riding, Matthew Weiss, a baker, was strangled to death in a bakery here.

Weiss entered the elevator with the tray, part of which projected beyond the edge of the car. As the elevator descended from the first floor to the basement, the tray struck the edge of the shaft, tilted downward and pinned Weiss by the neck.

MAYOR QUITS JOB TO ENTER A.-M. COLLEGE

ALICE, Sept. 20.—"Hizzoner" is off to school.

College Station, the home of Texas A. & M. college is to have a distinguished student this year in the person of Mayor E. V. Spence. Spence tendered his resignation to the city commission of Alice not long ago preparatory to entering upon his studies.

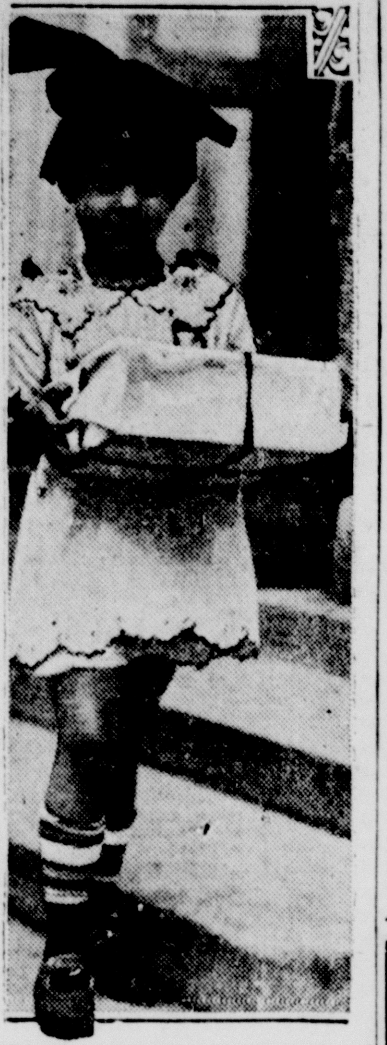
The former mayor will take a year's post-graduate course in highway engineering and city management. He was former county engineer of Jim Wells county.

SLAB OF LEAD FOUND IN STOMACH OF FISH

BRUCE, Wis., Sept. 20.—While trolling in Little Rice lake, Robert Schultz captured the largest muskellunge caught in this part of Wisconsin for years. The fish weighed 47 1-2 pounds and measured 53 inches in length. It required over an hour to land the fish and several shots from an automatic rifle were fired at him. In the stomach of the fish a two-pound pike and a piece of lead about eight inches long and an inch thick were found.

She is all the more remarkable for doing this because she is, politically, a Liberal.

Young, But Oh My!



Beatrice Helm, 5, of Washington, is shown here with the cake she baked all by herself for President Coolidge. Beatrice has been cooking since a tot—which is all she is now, one might say.

HUMAN HAIR WARNING FLAG

Is Used by Lighthouse Because It Stretches

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—As the fact that human hair stretches under moisture has been applied by the United States Lighthouse service in the operation of the newest form of electric fog bell, which is made to ring automatically when the atmosphere reaches a certain degree of dampness.

A strand of several hundred hairs is stretched between two supports, and on the strand is a link. As the air gets moist, as in a fog, the hair stretches, the link is lowered and makes an electrical contact which starts a half-horse power electric motor. This operates the fog-bell striker.

As the fog disappears, the strand of hair tightens, the link is raised, the electrical contact is broken and the fog bell stops.

RIVER VALLEY FAIR ADVERTISED BY TRIP

SHERMAN, Sept. 20.—Red River Valley Fair boosters, to the number of 125, invaded South Grayson and into Central Collin county today.

They were at McKinney at noon, where Mayor Tom W. Perkins welcomed them. They were given a cordial greeting at all stops. At Melissa the ladies of the town served ice cream and cake to the visitors.

The boosters were accompanied on the trip by the Municipal Band of forty-five pieces. They will make a trip through West Grayson tomorrow and will visit southern Oklahoma towns Thursday.

DALTON FREED OF BOND THEFT

Third Trial of Chicagoan Concludes Case

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Little Willie Dalton, 19-year-old bank messenger, was found not guilty by a jury here of stealing $772,000 worth of bonds from the Northern Trust company here in 1921.

Young Dalton, only 16 when he walked out of the bank with the bonds to be found three days later, was tried twice previously, the jury in each of the other trials disagreeing on the verdict.

Attorneys for Dalton's defense pleaded for the boy on the grounds of his youth.

THREE TEXAS FLIERS IN DAYTON CONTESTS

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 20.—Leaving probably Friday to participate in the international races at Dayton, Oct. 2, 3, 4, will be Lieutenants Julian B. Haddon, Clinton F. Woolsey and Hez McClellan. Woolsey and McClellan will enter the Dayton Chamber of Commerce trophy race and Haddon will take part in the Liberty Engine Builders' trophy race.

Lieutenant Haddon is in charge of flying operations at Brooks Field.

BUSINESS DEALINGS

This is another in a series of ads by employes of the First National Bank. Others will follow. Watch for them.

By TRAVIS HOLLAND

Business dealings should be mutually beneficial, and a man who fails to give value either in goods or service for money received is a thief at heart. Getting something for nothing is dishonorable whether in a crap game or in business, yet some men assume that the name of business is a magic word that gives absolution for all kinds of trickery, deceit and fraud.

Exceptional cases may be cited and sophistry used to cover up, but the fundamental principle stands that he who obtains something for nothing is sadly wanting in elementary ethics.

Progressive business men of today are beginning to realize the fact that every business deal has a moral bearing, and that giving value received in goods or service is not only more satisfactory from the standpoint of ethics, but is a better foundation for permanent business prosperity.
